College-Educated Police

Veteran Lawman Says Scope Must Be Broadened

By BOB PETERSON

Trends in law enforcement today lean toward the college-educated officer.

Some young men go to college specifically to study criminology and the related areas of police science.

Others pick up their degree a few credits at a time while on the job.

Sgt. Gus Nicolopulos is in the latter group. He's 51 and going into his 19th year as a member of the South San Francisco Police Department.

Gus is not his given name. It's Constantinos Demetrios. "Now you know why I call myself Gus," said the recent graduate, revealing a joviality all his own.

Nicolopulos received his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Public Administration from San Francisco State College in January, 30 years after beginning school at the University of California, Berkeley.

At that time he was majoring in physical education. "My first love was to become a coach," said Nicolopulos. Coaching obviously remains dear to his heart, if his long association with the Police Athletic League is an indicator.

Nicolopulos was one of the charter organizers of the South San Francisco program in 1958. He served seven years as its president.

"I think PAL is one of the best public relations programs the police can have," said Nicolopulos. "Although you can never really measure directly what it has accomplished, the efforts are worth it. In a couple of decades maybe the results will come through."

Even though he didn't finish school the first time around, he was not idle. There was the tail end of a depression and World War II. To make sure of that Nicolopulos participated in both.

He served primarily in North Africa during the war and was discharged on his birthday in 1945. "That was one of my happiest birthdays," he says.

Once back home, he wasted no time in marrying his childhood sweetheart. They've raised three sons.

The oldest, Robert, is 23. He was just graduated from the University of San Francisco and intends to teach. "Right now

SSF Junks No-Return Bottle Ban

South San Francisco's controversial ordinance to ban non-returnable bottles and cans Monday was defeated by a 3 to 1 vote. A request to place the matter on the April municipal ballot was ignored.

Voting went as predicted. Mayor Bill Borba and Councilmen Patrick Ahern and Frank Bertucelli were in the majority. Standing alone was Councilman Warren Steinkamp. Councilman Frank Mammini, who previously supported the ordinance, was on vacation.

Bertucelli, chairman of the special study committee selected by Borba to study alternatives to the ordinance, came under fire for his position change.

"At the time I voted for it in January I had reservations about it," said Bertucelli. Asked why he would not go along with a referendum, Bertucelli said he couldn't vote two ways.

David Fassler, one of the youths initiating the ordinance, reminded Bertucelli he already had voted two ways; in January he was for the ordinance, last night he voted against it.

"If the people want to work to place it on the ballot, fine," said Bertucelli. "But I'm not voting against myself."

John Yantis, one of the members of the study committee who walked out of the final study meeting calling it a sham, asked each councilman to give his position on why the matter should not go to a vote of the people. None did.

Resident Jerry Higgins asked whether the councilmen were concerned with the 18-year-old vote. "Don't you realize you have given the 18-year-olds an issue that will make them politically active. They will have a tremendous influence on who gets elected to the next city council in April," said Higgins. At that time the terms of office expire for Bertucelli, Mammini and Steinkamp.

Borba also came under audience attack, mainly from South San Francisco High School teacher Bob Jacobs. He, along with Eugene Mullin, counseled

Shop Center a Church?

Bruno Planners Approve D.C. Church's Proposal

A proposal to convert a shopping center into a church was approved by the San Bruno planners Monday night but they held over approval of a use permit for a new car dealer when a group of five San Mateo Avenue businessmen voiced their objections.

The shopping center is Portola Highlands. Although the center is only five years old, several supermarkets have failed there said the Rev. Donald B. Sheley.

His Calvary Cross Church, at 205 San Fernando Way, Daly City, has become too small, he said, and this site would enable his congregation — which included 500 families — to expand.

The congregation planned to leave the exterior the same, except to improve the landscaping, but to remodel the interior. The mall would become the nave, and the small shops would be used for additional rooms.

He said that the Portola Highlands neighborhood would share the use of a gymnasium they would build, and possibly a small park to be constructed in the site across the street.

The supermarket itself, would be subdivided into 16 classrooms.

Deputy City Attorney Dermot Fitzgerald said that the planners could not approve the plan without drawings. The plan was approved 3-2, subject to drawings being submitted by the August 10 meeting.

The permit for the car dealership was sought by Tanforan Dodge, represented by Joe Francis. He told the commissioners that his firm was merely buying an old, established dealership from Maury Sidlow, and planned to continue as before, except that the body shop on El Camino would continue to be Sidlow Motors.

The buildings will be located on the east side of Cherry Avenue extension, between San Bruno Avenue and Interstate 380. It constitutes the first phase of L. W. Douglas' Bayhill, a 90-acre office park whose development is slated to begin next year.

The plans were still general; no tenants have as yet been secured, although Douglas said that negotiations are in progress with tentative tenants.

Several banks are looking at the site, not only for a branch office, but possibly a regional headquarters. An alternate plan being considered would be to house the bank in the second story lobby of the office building, a story level with San Bruno Avenue. In that case, Douglas said, the site of the proposed bank building, at the corner of Cherry and Euclid Avenue extension would be landscaped.

The high-rise building would be of a new kind of construction.

The parking structure would be linked to the office building by ramps. The three levels would house 384 cars, while the fourth level, the roof, would be devoted entirely to the 10,000-square-foot restaurant, landscaping, and restaurant parking. The roof would be level with San Bruno Avenue.

Lifted Car

Nixon Cites D.C. Postman Delgado

Last April Daly City Postman Abel Delgado did the impossible while making his appointed rounds and Ernesto Abuyen is alive today to tell about it.

The "impossible" feat won him congratulations from his superiors after it was reported and now has resulted in presidential citation from President Nixon.

The strapping 6-foot, 190 pound former U.S. Marine was making his rounds last March 8 when he watched horrified as a heavy Cadillac car slipped off a jack and pinned Abuyen beneath it.

ABEL DELGADO

Throwing his mail bag aside, Delgado grabbed the back of the car and lifted it high enough off the ground for his friend to scramble out from under.

"Where I got the strength to do that I'll never know," Delgado said. "I just prayed to God I could do it."

Except for a few bruises and cuts, Abuyen escaped serious injury.

"For exceptional service to others in the finest American tradition," Nixon's citation read.

Earlier, postmaster Vincent Murphy presented Delgado, father of three, with a commendation and a check for $100.

No Increase in Tax Rate for S.S.F.

Once again the 91 cents per $100 assessed valuation tax rate of South San Francisco has been retained.

Councilmen Monday adopted a resolution setting that figure for the 1971-72 tax rate. They also adopted a resolution fixing the amount of revenue required from property taxes at $1,929,456 for fiscal 1971-72.

City Manager Gale Dreisbach said he has balanced the city's budget for the first time in years without taking monies from the general fund.

He said he did it by proposing that for the next fiscal year the sales tax monies usually credited on a percentage basis to capital improvement fund will go 100 per cent instead into the general fund.

In order to balance the budget, Dreisbach said he also had to delete almost all the departmental requests for new personnel.

Pacifica PB&R Okehs Plan for New Park

An architectural plan for the development of Frontierland Park, a former refuse dump, has been approved by Pacifica's Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department.

Architect Jack Buktenica's plan will be forwarded to other municipal agencies when a detailed cost analysis is completed.

Buktenica said the various elevations of the Park Pacifica site would provide an interesting, even if restricted, planning challenge.

He said that high winds in upper regions of the park site and the settlement of fill areas would be two problems which must be overcome.

The park areas rise behind the Oddstad School onto an amphitheater, inset into the hill which will separate Frontierland Park from the San Pedro Creek Park to the south.

The plan calls for location of a central park building, at the cul-de-sac at the south end of Yosemite Drive. There also will be a turn-around, parking area and a driveway between upper and lower levels of the park.

Group and individual picnic sites, volleyball and tennis courts, an outdoor theatre, horseshoe pits, a nature center and nature paths, a pond and animal farm, possibly manned by the local 4-H Club, would be featured.

Community participation was said to be the key to continued development of the park plan.

Posting of signs which warn that motor driven vehicles are prohibited on hiking and horse trails in the Fairmont area of Pacifica has won approval of the commission.

The request for the new signs came from the Fairmont Subdivisions Improvement Association. Its president, J. Richard Dixon, said that residents are being increasingly annoyed by motorcycle and mini-bike riders.

The commission has also agreed with the city's Health and Safety Commission that the bicycle safety program and the annual spring bike rodeo should be resumed.

Commissioner Sheila Hyman announced that the quarterly meeting of the Bay Area Commission Association will be held in Pacifica October 13, at Nick's Rockaway restaurant. Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg of Sacramento is to be the speaker.

Health Center Receives Funds

A money transfusion was administered to the new Guadalupe Health Clinic in Daly City July 26.

Acting on the recommendation of Dr. George Pickett, County Health and Welfare Director, the County Board of Supervisors authorized the expenditure of an additional $15,000 for physicians' services there.

Dr. Pickett said the $8,000 the clinic had to work with is dwindling fast in getting the facility into operation.

The $15,000, he said, will be used to pay contract physicians, to be obtained by the county, at the rate of $50 for each three-hour clinic session.

The board instructed Dr. Pickett and County Manager M. D. Tarshes to work out the financing within the budget of the Health and Welfare Department.

Dr. Pickett told the board that the North County region contains 28.3 per cent of the county's aged, disabled and dependent children caseload, second only to the South County region. Welfare recipients in the South County receive medical care at the East Palo Alto Neighborhood Health Center, which contracts with the county.

Except for the regional mental health office in Daly City and the public health and social service office in South San Francisco, welfare recipients in the North County do not have convenient access to health services.

Transportation to central county facilities in San Mateo is difficult, Dr. Pickett noted, and there is a Spanish language problem which he said can be better handled in a community clinic.

The clinic, on Mission Street, opened July 1. It is open from 7 to 10 five nights a week.

Dr. Pickett said the clinic's Board of Directors "has demonstrated genuine concern, stability and an encouraging development of competence over the past several months."

Cemeteries Still Struck

Striking cemetery workers met Thursday with managers of 10 Peninsula cemeteries in an attempt to end the strike that began June 3 and has delayed burial of perhaps 800 bodies.

Maurice Fitzgerald, secretary-treasurer of Cemetery Workers Union Local 265, said he saw little liklihood the session would produce a settlement.

George Johns, secretary of the San Francisco Labor Council, said the two sides are farther apart than ever.

"It was a waste of time," he said. "Not only are the two sides further apart, but what seems worse to me, the public is apathetic."

The workers, who were making $34.20 a day when they went out, seek an increase of at least $6 per day.

More About College-Educated Police

he's out of a job, like a lot of other teachers," said Nicolopulos.

A second son, Richard, age 20, is in his junior year at the same school. He's studying history and political science. And the third boy, 17-year-old Russell will be a senior this year at Serra High School, San Mateo.

Nicolopulos joined the South San Francisco department in April of 1953, "after holding four jobs at one time that didn't pay enough for lunch."

He has been a sergeant for ten years, and has watched the changes in the Peninsula population. "The feeling of belonging to a city is gone," he said.

What brought on the desire to complete his education?

About four years ago he started to evaluate his credits from the University of California. "I thought I would tackle it as self-learning," said Nicolopulos. "I believe the scope of the policeman must be broadened. We must become more aware, and formal education is one way of doing it. I would like to be able to use both my experience and my education to improve law enforcement."

Nicolopulos has some definite ideas about police and society.

"We (the police) have long been ridiculed and bombarded for not being able to handle society's ills and complex problems," he said.

"Since we are the only facility available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year, we often are expected to do so."

As an example of society's dual demands on police he cited a hypothetical case of the drunk, who is also a diabetic.

"You pick him up at 3 a.m. and call a doctor because you know he's a diabetic. The doctor asks you if he has been drinking. You say yes. The doctor says let him sleep it off. So we have this guy on our hands who could become very seriously ill. Sad isn't it."

Nicilopulos' point is that a police officer is expected to make split-second life and death decisions. He says that officers with more formal education might better be able to make those decisions.

"Officers also should take a few extra seconds to listen," said Nicolopulos, revealing a part of his philosophy that 15 years ago made him a "do gooder." The philosophy also undoubtedly had a lot to do with his returning to school, and receiving a better acceptance than he expected.

"I was received very well in school," he said. "I never had the feeling that I was out of place with the young people. I learned a lot from the youth, and I hope they were able to profit by someone of my experience."

But Nicolopulos was young compared to others in his classes. "Many people who have raised families are going back, striving to complete an unfulfilled realization," he said.

Nicolopulos also isn't the only South San Francisco officer earning a degree recently. Lt. James Datzman obtained his in business administration. Sgt. Jules Koefed picked up his in criminology and Dispatcher Hugh McCaffrey earned one in political science. None have Nicolopulos' in-service time, however.

Two new officers with degrees joined the force recently, Bruce Tognetti with one in criminology and Mark Raffaelli with one in political science.

Requirements do not call for a college degree at the South San Francisco Police Department. However, the city does offer policemen educational incentive pay. And, almost every officer on the force is either striving for, or has a two-year degree. Several, Pat Sullivan, Joe Rajeski and Larry Crawford are closing in on their B.A.'s.

What about Nicolopulos? Is he resting on his laurels? Hardly. He's now enrolled in the Public Administration Masters program at Hayward State College. He says he's "preparing myself to be a better man."

Two Young Democrats Share Honors

Two young Democrats were named co-Democrat of the Year at an awards dinner Saturday night in San Bruno.

The awards honored the work of youth in the party.

The winners were Christine Pombo, 19, of San Mateo, and David Sanders, 18, of San Bruno. They said they began their political interest with the Robert F. Kennedy campaign in 1968. Both were workers in the successful campaign of State Senator Arlen F. Gregorio last fall.

Christine Pombo

David Sanders

Some 130 Democrats at Russo's Restaurant Saturday night also heard Rep. Jerome R. Waldie (D-Antioch) and State Senate Majority Leader George Moscone (D-San Francisco) talk about Vietnam and Governor Ronald Reagan.

Giving the biennial award to Miss Pombo and Sanders "is only fitting" because of the support young people have given the Democratic party, master of ceremonies Tony Governale said in the presentation.

With 18-year-olds recently given the right to vote, this support is expected to show up at the polls next year. One of Miss Pombo's projects last year was to start a Gregorio for Senate Committee at College of San Mateo.

Pre-registration of new 18 and over voters there ran 9 to 1 Democratic at one point last fall.

Christine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Pombo, 312 Thirty-first Avenue, San Mateo, and is a sophomore at CSM. She is a political science major and hopes to go to University of California at Davis next spring.

The Kennedy assassination spurred her interest in politics in 1968, she said, and she's been involved ever since.

Since the Gregorio campaign "I still help occasionally," she said.

Sanders, a June graduate of Crestmoor High School, turned 18 February 16 and became the first 18-year-old registrar of voters and the youngest ever in this county.

He is coordinator of the Democratic party youth registration drive in this county.

He was one of the small army of youngsters in the Gregorio campaign, doing the office and leg work.

Sanders stopped in at a campaign office for a Kennedy poster during the 1968 primary.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sanders, 675 Cedar Street, San Bruno. He plans to major in history at CSM.

The two older figures in the limelight Saturday traded polite jabs at each other's 1974 gubernatorial ambitions. Both are mentioned prominently as Democratic contenders for Reagan's office and Moscone seemed convinced Reagan would go for the presidency in 1972.

"My good friend George at this moment is my second choice for governor," Waldie quipped at the podium. Moscone noted simply that it was a pleasure to share the rostrum with Waldie, "Who wants to go to Sacramento with me."

Waldie said he couldn't criticize President Nixon for not ending the Indochina war because of his withdrawal plans. The question is how soon and for this the Congress must share the blame for any tardiness, he said.

School Costs Increasing

A 1971-72 budget of $4,322,276 was adopted Monday by the Millbrae School District Board of Education.

Last year's budget was $4,151,309.

According to district administrators, the increase was the result of salary increases and raises in operating expenses. The tax rate was reduced by 10 cents due to increases in assessed valuation in the district.

The budget was adopted although salaries for teachers and some non-teaching personnel have yet to be negotiated for the current school year.

Concern was expressed about a projected $7,000 deficit in the district's hot lunch program. It was estimated that it will cost about 49.5 cents for a hot lunch, compared to a past charge of 40 cents for such meals. Board members indicated they may have to increase the charge to pupils to offset the projected deficit.

Gun Victim Suspected of S.F. Robbery

A San Francisco man, taken to South San Francisco's Kaiser Hospital Monday afternoon with gunshot wounds, fit the description of a person shot in a San Francisco holdup, police shop.

Ronald James, 25, was brought into the Kaiser facility at about 5 p.m. by two companions, who police also later arrested in connection with the robbery.

South San Francisco police booked John Fisk, 25, and Norman Vanord, 23, en route to the San Francisco Police Department.

According to South San Francisco police, James said he had been shot during a dice game. However, when police called San Francisco to locate the vicinity of the game they were informed of the robbery. Descriptions of the three matched those being sought by San Francisco police.

James was later transferred to San Francisco General Hospital where he is reported in satisfactory condition with gunshot wounds in the wrist and mouth.

San Francisco police said the men are being held in connection with the investigation of a robbery of Sheeper's Grocery, 745 Valasco, San Francisco.

According to police, three men fitting the description of those in custody robbed the store. As they were leaving owner Kenneth Sheeper fired two shots from a .38 caliber pistol. He told police he was certain he had hit one of the men at least twice.

Annexation

A sliver of county property surrounded by South San Francisco is the target for annexation by that city.

Mayor Bill Borba Monday night instructed City Manager Gale Dreisbach to take the necessary steps with the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) to obtain the property.

Approximately an acre, the property in question is on the Arroyo Drive right-of-way and would place a portion of Junipero Serra Boulevard within South San Francisco city limits.

Plan Given to Preserve Bruno Mtn.

South San Francisco councilmen Monday night were presented with a proposal on how to preserve San Bruno Mountain in its natural state—set up a Recreation District.

The proposal came from former council candidate Tony Montoya, who acknowledged that setting up such a district also would mean an added tax burden.

Montoya said he has long been attempting to contact the residents of the Sunshine Gardens area, at the base of the mountain, for a meeting to discuss the future of the mountain.

Robert Albright, head of Citizen's for Responsible Government, then informed the councilmen that his civic organization has set up a meeting at city at 7:30 p.m. August 26 for that very purpose.

Albright said a spokesman for mountain property owner Crocker Land Company will be there for a brief presentation, followed by a discussion.

Montoya, meanwhile, continued to attempt to get the feeling from the councilmen on his recreational district proposal.

"I'm at the base of the mountain. I look at it every morning and I pass it every day. I think a recreation district is a good possibility of maintaining it in its natural state," he said.

Montoya pointed to the agricultural setup of the Cow Palace as an example of the route a recreational district could follow.

He suggested the matter be placed on the ballot. "If we are really interested in keeping the mountain free of development, this recreational district would be an area to work toward," said Montoya.

He also said a housewife he has talked with concerning the mountain indicated some people would be ready to boycott products of Foremost McKesson (the Crocker people) "if they (Crocker) don't come around to our way of thinking."

The only response Montoya received from the councilmen came from Patrick Ahern. He said it was doubtful the North County cities alone could support a recreation district, and suggested that if this idea was to be pursued at all, it should be on a regional basis.

Credit Cards

South San Francisco councilmen Monday night approved issuance of Diner's Club and American Express credit cards for use by City Manager Gale Dreisbach.

Driesbach said the credit cards will ease city clerk's bookkeeping procedure by avoiding excess paperwork.

the youths in their fight to retain the ordinance.

Jacobs called the entire series of events from the time the ordinance was first adopted until last night's defeat a disgrace to the American political system.

"It is hard to teach the principles of government after witnessing some of the methods and procedures carried on with this ordinance," said Jacobs.

He listed three points of contention. The first was what he called a biased study committee, the second was that debate on the matter was limited and the third was that Bertucelli changed his mind without explaining his vote.

At the beginning of the meeting Borba established a ten-minute time limit total for pro and con positions. He enforced the limit by gaveling down Fassler toward the end of the youth's prepared speech. Borba also cut off another youth, Bob Bowen, saying his time had elasped. He ended the meeting, then gave businessman John Tanti a few moments to speak. When another youth came forward, Borba again halted the meeting. This time for good.

Councilman Bertucelli supplied members of the committee with a manila folder containing his report to the mayor. This move was questioned by Tony Montoya, a former council candidate. Montoya said the materials should have been presented to committee members earlier so they would have an opportunity to review them.

City Clerk Arthur Rodondi read both the report submitted by Bertucelli and a minority position submitted by Mullin, also handed out at the meeting.

"The factual data presented during the four meetings held do not lend themselves to the theory that Ordinance 611 is in the best interest of South San Francisco or the over-all approach to the environment problem," said the report.

Mullin's page long report renewed the three-fold purpose the youth had in pursuing the ordinance. They were to reduce the drain on the natural resources, influence a change in life styles away from a disposable society and to reduce the litter problem.

"Since Ordinance 611 would, in some way, affect all the residents of South San Francisco, then let those residents decide if they want the ordinance put into effect," said Mullins' report.

DEATHS

San Brunan's Body Found in Plumas Creek

The body of Thomas W. Welch, a San Bruno resident for 30 of 36 years, was found last Wednesday in Spanish Creek near Keddie, about seven miles from Quincy in Plumas County.

Funeral services were Tuesday from the Chapel of the Highlands in Millbrae. Private inurnment was at Golden Gate National Cemetery.

According to the Plumas County sheriff, the Lomia Park man had been living in a shack near Keddie with another man. The body was discovered in the river by a hiker. The cause of death is still under investigation.

Welch was born in Indiana. He had a son and three daughters, Thomas, Wendy and Wanda, of Indiana, and Maria of San Raphael. Also surviving are his sister Patricia Rulish and mother, Gladys Varni, both of San Bruno. He lived at 224 Santa Maria Avenue.

N. County Food Plan Needs Help

South San Francisco, Pacifica and Daly City Head Start programs have gained needed surplus food to feed the poor. All that is needed now is a kitchen with a central location to administer the serving of the food.

Head Start coordinator Mrs. H. J. Glickman reported to the county's Economic Opportunity Commission that flour, grains, meats, fruit, and milk is being obtained from Sacramento but they still lack a kitchen facility.

E. R. Becks reported that the county's poor health is reflected in their medical examinations.

Mrs. Glickman presented a report on nutrition in response to questioning from commissioner Maria Carter.

Mrs. Glickman recommended pooling the resources of South San Francisco, Pacific and Daly City into one kitchen. In other cities there has been a poor quality of food and poor response on the part of the preschool and elementary school student at whom the project is aimed. Mrs. Glickman said that she has hoped to find space in an available church but has not been successful.

8 Injured in Accident

Eight persons, seven members of one family, were injured in a three-car accident on the Nineteenth Avenue freeway 600 feet east of Hillsdale Boulevard Monday evening, Highway Patrolman reported today.

The accident occurred, when a small foreeign-made car driven by Linda L. Ryner, 26, of 5565 Edison Street, San Mateo, was eastbound when she lost control of the vehicle. Her car hit an auto driven by Paul O. Zem, 50, of 2718 Belmont Canyon Road, Belmont, and then went through the bushes in the divider strip and struck an auto driven by Richard A. Diodati, 32, of 3140 Canyon Road, Belmont. The woman driver was taken to Chope Community Hospital. Seven occupants of the Diodati vehicle were taken to Peninsula Hospital. They were Stacey M. Diodati, 4; Greg Diodati, 10, Kirk S. Diodati, 8, and Martha Diodati, 32, all of Belmont, and Dorothy R. Diodati, 25; Gina Diodati, 7, and Laura N. Diodati, 4, all of Rome, Ga.

Condon Urges Fight Against Area Plan

San Mateo Mayor John F. Condon Tuesday called on the city's and county's voters to oppose Assembly Bill 1057 which sets up an 83-member Regional Government.

It is geared to control planning in all cities of the Bay region, transit, water and air pollution—and other regional matters.

The mayor warns local taxpayers, "The initial price-tag for regional government is four-cents per $100 of assessed valuation. We would all be naive to assume that's all it would cost. That would only be the beginning."

"I urge the people of San Mateo city and county to take a long and careful look at this situation, and let their State Legislators know how they stand on this bill.

"There is a spate of bills setting up regional bodies in the Legislature, most are engineered for the Bay region's nine counties. If one is passed, the sole remaining function of local government would be simply to implement regional and state directions in the major fields of sewage treatment, planning, transportation, air pollution, and doubtlessly in time to come if not immediately, other related areas."

The mayor continues, "Of course it's simpler for the state to work through one regional government rather than to go through hundreds of cities and nine counties. What happens to the will of the people?

"The bigger the government, the less responsive to the people. We hear that cry throughout the nation. What chance does anyone have to get a majority of 83 people to respond to a group of homeowners, for example, in San Mateo.

"They have muscle when it comes to telling their city councils what they want. All complain the county government is too remote, the state even more so. The federal government is beyond the influence of 2 or 300 local homeowners who are fighting some planning issue.

"For this reason, I urge most sincerely that people really take the time to inform themselves of what is at stake and get in touch with Senator Arlen Gregorio, Assemblymen Leo Ryan and Dixon Arnett.

S.M. County Parks Chief Is Retiring

Twenty-six years as San Mateo County director of parks and recreation came to an end Tuesday for Ralph M. Shaw of San Carlos.

Shaw's retirement from the job he has held since 1945 becomes effective at the close of the work day yesterday.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes said he will appoint Shaw's top assistant, John T. Brook Jr., acting director as of tomorrow until a permanent appointment is made. The position is appointive by the county manager with the approval of the Board of Supervisors.

County Personnel Director Richard T. Kennedy said 34 applicants took the written examination for the position. The top 10 from that group went before on oral interview board last Thursday. Board members included Kennedy as chairman; Chairman Albert Pfaff of the County Parks and Recreation Commission; David L. Nichols, administrative officer of Sonoma County; B. V. Amy, director of parks and recreation Santa Clara County, and Mrs. Claire Dedrick, one of the county's top conservationists.

The top four survivors were interviewed by Tarshes Friday. He said interviews will be scheduled with the supervisors before an appointment is made.

A 'Free' Offer?

By LORENE BEASLEY
Editor of BBB Barometer

Sometimes "free" merchandise is exactly that. A merchant will offer you a door prize or gift as part of a special promotion or grand opening. But quite often free film, free land, free vacations and other free items come as part of a special combination offer which requires you to purchase other merchandise, enter into a special contract, join a club or pay a processing fee.

These offers may or may not be good deals. It's up to you to decide if the free merchandise is worth the price.

The next time you're tempted by free merchandise, use these six guidelines to help evaluate the offer:

Investigate the company. A quick check with the Better Business Bureau can tell you a lot about a firm's reputation and reliability.

Find out exactly what the offer involves. What must you do in return for the free merchandise? If a purchase is required, what is the total cost to you? Must the cost be paid immediately or can credit be arranged? What are the credit terms?

Comparison shop. Compare the offer with those of other merchants.

Read and understand any contracts. Study the contracts and be sure that any thing agreed to verbally is also included in the written contract.

County's Mayors Opposed Regional Bill

An angry San Mateo County Council of Mayors Friday vigorously opposed a bill that would create an 83-member, nine county regional government.

And it opposed, in principle, any legislation that would create any additional regional governmental agencies.

Only one vote — that of Councilman Harold Purpus of Millbrae — prevented an official stand against creation of additional regional agencies without the specific approval of local governments.

During a discussion lasting three hours, the county's three legislative representatives in Sacramento, Senator Arlen Gregorio and Assemblymen Dixon Arnett and Leo Ryan, were criticized, for allegedly listening to such conservationist groups as the Committee for Green Foothills and the Sierra Club, instead of from their local elected officials. The mayors, meeting in San Bruno, claimed that locally elected officials are faced more realistically with the concrete problems of government.

Near the conclusion of the meeting, the mayors agreed to decide whether the cities should join together to hire a legislative representative to speak for them in Sacramento.

The featured speakers at the meeting were George B. Pottorff and members of his staff, who represent the county as advocates in Sacramento.

The members went on record as opposing Assembly Bill 1057 proposed by Assemblyman John Knox of Contra Costa County, which would create an 83-member regional board to take over functions now handled by the Association of Bay Area Governments such as processing state and federal grants to local governments.

Only Purpus of Millbrae voted against opposing the bill, while Mayor Nat Landes of Woodside abstained from voting.

Among issues in the campaign were bills that would create a series of regional boards that would allegedly take control away from cities such as zoning matters, prohibit cities from disallowing mobile home communities, give the power for salary bargaining between cities and employes to a State Department of Industrial Relations.

Leading the movement was Mayor Wayne McFadden, of the newly incorporated Foster City.

McFadden, warning of a big brother trend, said there are about 30 regional agencies in the nine Bay counties now, and 12 to 15 are possibly on the books during the coming year.

"Cities will become the agencies that implement state directives," he said. "We will collect the money and receive the cease and desist orders. It will be an intolerable situation."

McFadden charged, "There is no record of anything or what any city in this county thinks."

Pottorff at the outset of the meeting told the mayors that there are some 600 bills in the current legislature that affect San Mateo County.

"I'm beginning to look at our legislators as public enemies number one," Mayor Bernard Lycett commented. "Our legislators don't care what we think. We're closer to the people than they are."

"Public enemy number one is a good quote," Mayor Robert Jones of Belmont added.

Victor Pottorff cautioned that, "You're in a fight for your very existence in the next ten years. They are talking about taking away your police and fire fighting powers."

Councilman William R. Lawson of Menlo Park said local state legislators are listening to local conservation groups, and that "a cop-out that gives a lot of people a chance to talk about open space and green hills doesn't get down to the nitty-gritty of real government. Don't let us get our noses bloodied."

District Is Dissolved

What do you do with a special purpose district that has no governing body, collects no taxes and provides no services?

Get rid of it, is what the County Local Agency Formation Commission did to the Millbrae Police Protection District.

Executive Officer B. Sherman Coffman said the district was established in 1941 to provide police services in an unincorporated area that is now wholly within the city limits of Millbrae.

It has served no purpose in recent years, however, as the city provides full police services for all of the property within its borders.

The action reduces the number of special purpose districts in San Mateo County to 74.

Serra Music Director Robbed in His Home

Philip Raymond Garay was robbed in his own house in Millbrae.

Young Garay, not yet 21, is the new music department head at Serra High School in San Mateo, and was returning home after spending some time at the school, preparing for September.

He drove up to his parents' home at 881 Crestview Avenue, Millbrae, at 2 p.m. In the driveway was a strange car, but he paid no attention, he later told police, because many friends use the family swimming pool and it is not unusual to see strange cars around.

Garay entered the house through a sliding glass door at the side, and immediately saw a stranger.

The man saw Garay at the same time, jumped him, grabbed him around the neck, and pulled Garay's head down.

Soon Garay was tied up, and blindfolded.

His three captors talked in Spanish, which Garay can understand. They herded him into his own bedroom, tied him to an antique sofa with television wire, and started to leave.

The burglars had already ransacked the house, say police, and had piled up heaps of loot in the kitchen.

Garay's father is bandleader Bobby Garay, and his uncle Joaquin, was a well-known singer in the Bay Area for years. Because of the family interest, there is much musical equipment around the house, and the thieves had attempted to steal guitars, stereo amplifiers, radios, and cameras.

Finally, all three of them left the room where young Garay was tied and blindfolded.

He worked loose from his bonds, slipped through another sliding glass door, scaled a fence, and ran for help.

Lawsuits Are Filed in DC Death

Twin lawsuits have been filed in Superior Court in Redwood City by the widow of a Daly City man who died a year ago following a barroom fight.

She is Mrs. Mae A. Henley, 6036 Mission Street, whose husband, Joseph L. Henley, 46, died last July 29.

One of the suits, asking $200,000 general damages and $100,000 punitive damages, is filed against Henley's alleged assailant, John L. Ruybal, 18, of San Francisco, his parents, and the Wit's End bar at 6055 Mission.

The suit states that on July 26 young Ruybal struck Henley in the face without provocation, resulting in his death three days later.

It is alleged that the parents and the owners of the bar failed to exercise proper supervision over Rubal, who was 17 at that time.

The second lawsuit asks $100,000 from Kaiser Foundation Hospitals and the Permanente Medical Group, alleging carelessness and negligence in caring for Henley.

Official records shows that Ruybal, reacting to a remark made by Henley, struck him with his fist, causing him to fall to the floor.

Henley was taken to Mary's Help Hospital, Daly City, and later to Kaiser Hospital, South San Francisco, for treatment of a fractured jawbone and other injuries.

The official cause of death was pneumonia.

No charges were filed against the youth.

2 Officers Fired Upon on Freeway

Two Highway Patrolmen reported they were sitting by the truck scales next to the northbound freeway lanes in South San Francisco Friday morning when someone took a shot directly at them from a speeding southbound Jaguar sportscar.

Patrolman Ken Araldi of San Jose said he and Patrolman James Baker heard a bullet pass directly over the top of their patrol car. Araldi said he saw a muzzle flash and heard the crack of a shot.

By the time the officers could get their patrol car turned around into the southbound lanes, the dark colored vehicle had left the area.

It is the second such incident in about a year at the same location. Patrolman A. L. Toscanelli said he and his partner were sitting at the same scales about a year ago when a bullet shot from a passing auto ricocheted off the ground next to their patrol vehicle.

Three Arrested After Wild Chase

What began as an attempt to prevent a shoplifting incident on July 27 resulted in a wild chase, complete with gunshots.

It ended with the arrest of three San Franciscans. And, in the melee, San Bruno Detective Rich Reed nearly was run over with the getaway car.

Arrested for burglary, possession of stolen property and resisting arrest were Doris Brown, 26, an unemployed waitress and Willie James Dorsey, 28, an unemployed janitor.

Booked on the same charges, plus the additional charge of assault with a deadly weapon (a car) was Jenette Kempo, 30, listed as a housewife

According to San Bruno police the incident began at approximately 9 p.m. at the Sears store at Tanforan Shopping Center. Detective Reed off-duty from police work, was serving at the store as a security officer.

Police said that two women came in the store with an apparently empty shopping bag. Sears Security Manager Reynaldo Zalles said he saw the women place a lady's pant suit in the bag and leave the store.

Both he and Reed gave chase. Outside, the women got into a waiting car, driven by a man. The car left the parking lot and headed down Sneath Lane toward Huntington Avenue. Reed and Zalles got into Reed's private automobile and gave pursuit.

At the White Front Store parking lot, at Spruce and El Camino Real, the security officers caught up with the suspects and identified themselves as police officers. They said the trio was under arrest.

The suspect vehicle however increased its speed, going over an approximate four foot landing onto Spruce Avenue, almost causing a collision with another vehicle, police said.

Once on Spruce the vehicle headed east. The car, however, slowed down to a stop, apparently malfunctioning because of the jolt it took going over the landing. The man got out and took off running.

Police said Detective Reed attempted to open the door. Meanwhile one of the females slid over to the driver's seat and attempted to start the car. She succeeded, and the vehicle suddenly took off in reverse, dragging Reed approximately ten feet. He received cuts on his left hand and left shoulder and both knees, police said.

The car's engine died and Reed again attempted to open the door. The female continued to attempt to start the vehicle. Detective Reed then returned to his car and retrieved his 25 caliber automatic. He proceeded to put five slugs in the rear and left front tires.

Police said this had no apparent immediate effect, as the car started again. The women then threw the bag out the car's window. The vehicle finally stopped again at about the 100 block of Spruce. The women rolled up the windows and locked the doors, before ultimately giving up, police said.

Meanwhile a radio broadcast had been sent out regarding the male suspect. South San Francisco Officer Charles Zetterholm, along with Reserve Officer William Carney, apprehened Dorsey on the campus of South San Francisco High School, police said.

Bruno Peak Delay OK'd

South San Francisco has asked the Local Agency Formation Commission to postpone the scheduled September meeting on San Bruno Mountain for at least 60 days.

LAFCO on July 27 agreed to the postponement.

The new schedule now calls for the meeting to be held in Redwood City on November 3, B. Sherman Coffman, executive director of the agency, said.

The reason for the request was not cited. However observers feel Daly City's desire to shed San Bruno Mountain from its sphere of influence may have prompted the delay.

Last week, Daly City asked LAFCO to cancel the 3,000 acre undeveloped mountain property from its sphere of influence.

City officials felt the Foremost-McKesson Company, owners of the mountain, had been "too vague" in presenting facts on future development of the area to Daly City.

Mayor Bernard J. Lycett said unless he knew exactly what was to be built on the mountain he did not want to commit citizens to any additional tax burden that might be experienced.

Slaying Verdict Is Guilty

George R. Radoff III was found guilty July 26 of a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

Originally charged with murder, Radoff waived a jury trial after the charge was reduced to manslaughter. The case was submitted to Superior Court Judge W. Howard Hartley on the basis of testimony and evidence at a preliminary hearing.

Radoff was arrested March 19 after Robert E. Strassburger of Brisbane was found in the street outside a Brisbane tavern, unconscious and suffering a severe head wound. He died five hours later and Radoff voluntarily surrendered.

Judge Hartley scheduled sentencing for 9 a.m. September 21.

Westborough Map Approval Delayed Pending Decision

Approval of a final map for Westborough West Park, a housing development in South San Francisco, has been held up for two weeks pending a decision on what to do about an extension of Gellert Boulevard.

Developer Henry L. Richman said he objected to the delay but would go along with it for the sake of trying to clarify what City Engineer Lou Goss considers a problem.

The problem in the eyes of the engineering department, is that if the city doesn't set policy to insure future development there may be problems later of opening extension of the street.

As it stands now street extension would not only be over land owned by the J. H. Snyder Company, but also would stretch over undeveloped acreage owned by Michael Callan.

The only solution, according to City Planner Dan Pass, is to have Richman and Callan get together and agree to extend the street.

Richman said the city already holds trust deeds for improvement of the roadway.

He said he signed an assessment petition calling for future extension of Gellert under an assessment district.

The matter has been referred to City Attorney John Noonan.

Superior Court to Hear Case

Douglas L. Sage, 23-year-old San Franciscan arrested July 11 by San Bruno Police, and charged with robbery, has been held to answer the charge in Superior Court, Redwood City, on August 9.

Sage, free on $10,000 bail, pleaded not guilty to the charge in South San Francisco Municipal Court.

Police arrested Sage shortly after a San Bruno Liquor store owner had been robbed at gunpoint.

A Free Ride

It was a busy day in the Belmont supermarket. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, harried housewives in curlers and slacks were filling their baskets with the week's groceries.

By the time I arrived at the checkout stand I had about half a basket of stuff — beer, meat, bread, cat food and shaving lotion: minimum requirements for a fast-paced Peninsula existence. I didn't mind too much that the women ahead of me had baskets heaped to overflowing. Might as well be patient.

Finally I worked my way up so there was only one person ahead of me. She was 23 or 24, cheaply but carefully dressed, slightly overweight. Her brown hair fell straight onto her shoulders. She toyed nervously with the clasp on her purse as she mumbled something almost inaudibly to the clerk. The clerk nodded, then began ringing up the groceries, keeping them separate from the "luxury" items.

Among the purchases were a box of rice, a frozen chicken, some vegetables, soap, milk, a couple of loaves of bread, some canned fruit, some dried beans. The total came to just over twenty dollars. The other items — cola, razor blades, some candy — were rung up separately. For these the woman paid cash.

Then she reached into her purse to pay for the larger batch of groceries. She pulled out three books of food coupons. They were in fifty cent and five dollar denominations. She tore out enough to cover the bill and handed them to the clerk. She did not appear humiliated. She looked just like any other housewife paying for groceries.

"Enjoy it, honey," I thought, uncharitably. "Here I am paying full cash price for my food — and you're getting a free ride from the government on MY taxes."

She smiled quickly at me as her bags were being loaded.

"Sorry I took so long," she said.

"That's OK."

She turned, grasped her cart, and disappeared out into the parking lot. And I was angry at myself.

"Here you are, you selfish ——," I thought. "The Lord has seen to it that you have a healthy mind and body, a good place to live, a car all paid for, and a good job that will provide you with anything you could possibly need.

"And you're begrudging a few lousy bucks to somebody that needs a helping hand?"

I had no reply.

HOT DOGS IN HOT PANTS

1 pound (8) hot dogs
½ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup yellow cornmeal
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon chili powder
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup crumbled shoestring potatoes

Heat hot dogs in water; dry thoroughly before dipping in batter. Blend all ingredients except potatoes about 20 seconds; beat vigorously 1 minute. Stir in potatoes. Heat fat or oil (3 to 4 inches) to 375 degrees in deep fat fryer or kettle. Insert wooden skewer in one end of hot dog or hold with tongs; dip two-thirds into cornmeal mixture, then into hot oil. Cook about 1 minute, until batter is lightly browned.

If you're interested in a new recipe for strawberry pie, here it is. The berries, in their natural state, are added to an easy-to-prepare creamy filling and the pie is chilled. The crust is a crumb-and-nut shell that complements the filling.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PIE

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups heavy cream
2-3rd cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 pint baskets fresh strawberries

Walnut Crumb Shell, see below

In a medium saucepan sprinkle the gelatin over the cold water; allow to stand about 5 minutes to soften; add ½ cup of the cream. Over low heat stir constantly until gelatin has dissolved. Add sugar and stir vigorously until dissolved.

Remove from heat. Stir in remaining 1 cup cream and vanilla. Chill until thickened.

Meanwhile rinse strawberries in cold water; remove caps. Quarter enough of the large berries and halve enough of the smaller berries to make 3 cups. Reserve remaining whole berries for garnish. Refrigerate cut-up and whole berries until ready to use. Place thickened gelatin mixture over ice cubes and cold water and beat until mixture is very thick and mounds when dropped from a spoon. Fold in cut-up berries. Spoon into Walnut Crumb Shell. Chill until set. Before serving halve whole remaining berries and garnish pie with them.

WALNUT CRUMB SHELL

1 cup graham cracker crumbs
2-3rds cup walnuts, finely chopped
¼ cup butter, melted
1 egg white, unbeaten

Mix crumbs and walnuts; work in butter and egg white and press into bottom and over sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Cool thoroughly before filling.

Airport Use Down

Aerial use of San Francisco International Airport dropped nearly eight per cent during the past fiscal year.

Statistical reports issued by Director of Airports James K. Carr reveal that aircraft movements in June were down 7.9 per cent from June of 1970.

Fiscal 1969-70 recorded a slump of 3.5 per cent in aircraft movements from the previous year, Carr reported.

Decreases are reported in numbers of passengers, amount of air mail and in air freight.

Only in air express loadings was there an increase during the past month, compared to a year ago, and that 17.9 per cent growth was offset by a 26.3 per cent decrease in air express off loadings.

Carr's report to the Airport Commission said the number of aircraft movements decreased from 26,294 in June of 1970 to 24,225 in June of 1971.

The number of passengers moving through the terminal buildings decreased from 1,327,215 last June to 1,218,837 last month. The decrease amounted to 8.2 per cent.

There was a 23 per cent decrease in air-carried mail, passing through the airport, Carr said. According to airline figures, air mail decreased 21.7 per cent and first class mail carried by air decreased by 25 per cent.

Air express shipments showed a net loss of 7.5 per cent, from 1,526,017 pounds in June a year ago, to 1,411,124 pounds this June.

Air freight tonnage also dropped, decreasing from 64,403,206 pounds in June of 1970 to 53,364,348 pounds last month.

The figures were compiled from statistics gathered from the 25 airlines serving San Francisco International, Carr said.

He said the annual figures show less of a slump than the month-to-month statistics which are subject to more violent reaction to various economic factors.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, for instance, total number of passengers carried equalled 14,139,883. The previous fiscal year's figure was 14,580,423. This decrease of 440,540 passengers was 3.5 per cent, he said.

Other statistics for the fiscal year show lesser changes than are indicated in the June-vs.-June figures.

Total mail carried by air increased 4 per cent during the fiscal year, as compared to the previous year, for a total of 294,659,443 pounds.

First Class mail carried by air increased 16.3 per cent to 116,741,582 pounds.

Total express carried by air increased .6 per cent during the fiscal year to a total of 19,793,463 pounds.

Air freight showed a 6.7 per cent slump during the latest fiscal year, down 41,593,277 pounds to 577,684,240 pounds total.

Air mail poundage decreased by three per cent during the year.

No Building in Purisima

Residential development in Purisima Canyon in the near future has been ruled out by the County Planning Commission.

The commission has ruled that the general plan for the Redwood Canyon Lakes development in the valley west of Skyline Boulevard opposite Huddart Park does not conform with the county Master Plan.

The Master Plan shows the property as suitable for open space and recreation use. The developers had proposed to build about 1,000 residential units in clusters on the ridges of the 2,500-acre property. The commission, however, ruled that the plan is not suitable either from the standpoint of land use or population density.

D.C. Suspect Is Cleared

A 16-year-old suspect in the robbery-abduction of a Daly City radio shop owner on July 16 has been cleared by investigators.

Edison Mua, 16, was cleared as a suspect in the case last week, Detective Tom Barner said.

Meanwhile, arrested as a suspect in the robbery-abduction of store owner Alan Mayeda was Alan Yow, 17, of San Francisco.

Both Yow and another juvenile, Albert Lew, are believed to be members of the Wah Ching gang—one of the youth gangs in the Chinatown section of San Francisco—a member of the San Francisco Police Department said.

Fire Damages SSF Residence

Fire did an estimated $7,500 worth of damage to a South San Francisco home Wednesday.

According to the report from the city's fire department, the blaze at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Byrne, 273 Village Way, began when vapors from a leaking motorcycle gas line ignited in the family's garage.

Fire Guts Millbrae Home

A Millbrae home was gutted on Sunday evening by a rapidly spreading fire that was brought under control in less than half an hour.

The fire started shortly before 6:30 at the Lisle Saum residence, 25 Chadwick Court, when a five gallon can of gasoline ignited and was accidentally kicked over according to Inspector Ed Williams of the Millbrae Fire Department.

Williams said that the Saum's 18 and 15-year-old sons were reportedly working in the family's garage at the time the fire started.

He said that, according to the boys, a can of gasoline they were using caught fire from being too close to a water heater and that the can was tipped over when one of them attempted to extinguish the fire.

Williams said the fire then moved up a staircase, engulfing a hallway, the kitchen, a family room next to it.

He said it chased everyone out of the house before a call for help could even be made.

Williams said the fire did an estimated $18,000 damage to the house. He placed its value at $60,000.

He said firemen controlled the blaze in about 20 minutes. He said seven men and two fire engines were used.

Planning Makes Summer Fun

Today is the day to begin thinking about another picnic with fried chicken, potato salad and watermelon and, if you don't already know about Henry Cowell Redwoods State Park, this is the time to explore that delightful and convenient spot for a summer's day idyll.

The park is on Highway 9, not far from the city limits of Felton, near enough for north Peninsula residents to enjoy yet very remote in its "feel" and appearance. No matter how hot the day, there seems to be something cool and restful about the elegant old giant redwoods. Children and adults seem to feel the awe which size and age of the redwoods impart to the forest scenes.

There is a fee of less than $1 for the use of park facilities but you may decide to spend slightly more and make this day a truly memorable one.

NOT MANY CHILDREN ride on real trains in 1971 but you can take advantage of the proximity of the Roaring Camp and Big Trees Railroad to give your charges an honest to goodness train ride on one of the few remaining narrow gauge lines still in operation.

Roaring Camp and the starting point for the train ride up to Bear Mountain is immediately adjacent to the park and trains depart every hour, on the hour. Many visitors elect to leave on the noon hour train and have their picnic on top of the mountain, catching a later "section" of the train back to the park.

Back at the park you will find picnic tables for a later snack, facilities for swimming and a fishing hole so be sure to have lines and safety pins tucked away in the picnic things for your younger anglers.

If getting out of town isn't possible for you and your children there are a number of ways that you can provide them with a change of pace and a little sunshine oriented fun. Have you considered a hike around Lake Merced? It may sound like a lot of walking but it really isn't and there are spots for you to pause and let young ones fish, hunt and look for cattails.

ON THE WEST side of the lake you are near the ocean and a few more yards of hiking will take you to the beach where the entire crew can doff shoes and wade in the chilling waters of the Pacific and build sand castles. At the north end of the walk you will be close to the zoo and playground and you may want to stop for a brief interlude within those portals before resuming your hike.

If walking sounds like more than you have time and energy to do, consider getting a portable sand box. A small, inexpensive child's inflatable wading pool is an excellent box and you can buy a 20-pound bag of sand. Divide the sand into double thickness grocery bags, about five pounds to each bag, for transporting and storage if it is going to be necessary to dismantle the sand box each day. The sand can be stored in your carport, basement or even in the trunk of your compact car, where it can serve as ballast on windy days.

A little sand, an old kitchen spoon, a few margarine "tubs" or cottage cheese cartons, and most young children are able to occupy themselves for hours at a time.

SHOULD YOUR HUSBAND be handy with a saw and hammer he can build a portable balancing rail which is fun as well as educational. Paint a length of two-by-four, about six feet long, a bright color, and construct two wing supports, one for each end, notched so that the board can be held firmly upright between the two supports. Placed in the yard the rail helps your children learn to balance themselves and develop their sense of equilibrium. The pieces break down into small enough parts that the whole kit may be stored anywhere, even in your bedroom closet, when not in use.

Summer should be a relaxed and enjoyable time for you and your child. If you plan ahead a little I am sure you will find it is a rewarding, rather than trying period for everyone.

2 WHS Seniors Living Abroad

Sue Jeppsen and Cheryl Glenn, who will be seniors at Westmoor High School, are living in Europe this summer through The American Program of The Experiment in International Living.

They are sponsored through the World Friendship Club and Citizens Committee of the local school.

They will be available to speak and show their pictures to school and committee groups when they return. Both went for a week of orientation at The Experiment headquarters at Brattlesboro, Vt., then flew with other students from New York to Brussels, Belgium.

They will return home in late August.

Sue is living with the Platz family at Stoverweg in West Germany, near the border of Denmark. The family daughter, Anita, is 16 years of age and is Sue's sister for her stay. The father works in a railroad station. The mother works also.

Sue saw a Greek play in the local theatre and has made a short trip into Denmark. Eleven other American students live in the area with whom she will take trips in the country. The German sister or brother will be included in the trips.

Cheryl is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Giachi at Grosetto, Italy, south of Genoa. There are three boys and a girl in the family. None of the family speaks English, so Cheryl finds it difficult to communicate. The family is well-to-do and has several maids. Cheryl will take trips in Italy with a group of students and their Italian counterparts.

Last year, the local Westmoor students sent abroad in this program were Rosalia Guillen, who went to Italy, and Gary Niduaza, who lived in Japan. They are available to speak and show their pictures.

Dexter Leland is the Westmoor High faculty advisor and local citizens on the committee are Lou Lent, Hazel Eagleton, Jim Current and Herbert Tweedie.

NELL NORTON

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

This week let's think about different and delicious ways to serve chicken. This first recipe was a prize winner in the Pillsbury Bake-off. It makes an attractive dish and is an unusual way to serve chicken. A chicken-cheese filling is wrapped inside a biscuit and rolled in crushed corn flakes making a hot crisp sandwich.

CHICKEN TO GO BISCUITS

2 Tablespoons butter or margarine
2 Tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup milk
2 cups cubed cooked chicken
1¼ cups (5 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese
½ cup (4 oz.) chopped or sliced drained mushrooms
1 can (9.5 oz.) Refrigerated Hungry Jack Biscuits
1 egg, slightly beaten
3 cups cornflakes, crushed or 1 cup cornflake crumbs.

OVEN 400-degrees, 4 to 5 servings.

In medium saucepan, melt the two tablespoons butter; stir in the two tablespoons flour, fourth teaspoon salt and pepper. Add the half cup milk all at once. Cook about 1 minute until thickened, stirring occasionally.

Stir in the two cups cooked chicken, one and one-fourth cups cheese and half cup mushrooms; set aside.

Separate the biscuit dough into 10 biscuits. Roll or pat out into 5 inch circles. Place about ¼ cup chicken mixture in each biscuit circle, shape into sticks 4-inches long. Wrap dough around chicken mixture, pressing edges to seal. Dip rolls into beaten egg, then coat with crushed cornflakes.

Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in 400-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes until golden brown.

TIPS: 3 cans (5 oz. each) chicken drained, or 2 cups any cooked or canned meat, cubed can be used for the chicken.

Reheat, wrapped in foil, at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes until heated through.

THIS RECIPE combines chicken with artichoke hearts, mushrooms, sherry and a dash of rosemary to make an entree that will please your family and is fancy enough for company too.

CHICKEN ROSEMARY

6 chicken breasts, skinned and boned
1 can (1 lb.) artichoke hearts, drained
6 Tablespoons butter
¼ pound mushrooms
2 Tablespoons flour
two-thirds cup chicken broth
¼ cup sherry
¾ teaspoon rosemary

Sprinkle the six boned chicken breasts with salt, pepper and paprika. In a skillet brown the chicken pieces in 4 tablespoons of the butter; place in a 2-quart casserole. Arrange the drained artichoke hearts around the chicken.

To the drippings in the skillet add the two tablespoons butter; saute the fourth pound mushrooms until tender. Sprinkle the two tablespoons flour over the mushrooms, stir in the two-thirds cup chicken broth, one-fourth cup sherry and three-fourths teaspoon rosemary. Cook for a few minutes, stirring and then pour over the chicken.

Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for one hour. Serves 6.

CORRECTIONS — In the Zucchini Casserole recipe the amount of grated yellow cheese called for is: ¼ cup.

The Zucchini Corn Casserole is a delicious dish. It will be more delicious if you use ½ clove garlic minced instead of the whole clove that was listed in the column.

THE MARQUEE

What began as a college drama department project has turned into a smash hit, critically acclaimed, with packed houses. It has been labeled "must see" by everyone.

So unexpectedly exciting has the production of the rock opera "Tommy" by the British rock group The Who, that its director John Pasqualetti and associates Sean McKenna, chairman of the drama dept. and Jack Davis, director of operations have formed a separate company titled Electronic Simulsense Theatre.

If the name sounds too technical, cut it down to EST which is the verb "to be" in Latin. Its double meaning is significant to the kind of emotional impact they expect to apply to such traditional dramatic forms as a new version of 'Romeo and Juliet.' It will be presented as a media full length, dance-theatre piece about love (as opposed to 'Tommy' which is about life), with electronic music and tape of the Prokofiev score and spoken Shakespeare.

Their plans also include a Stranvinsky trilogy consisting of 'Petrulka," "The Rite of Spring and "Firebird"' an acid "Nutcracker Ballet" and a rock version of "Alice In Wonderland" from a score yet to be selected.

They will not divorce themselves from Lone Mountain College's drama department but will stay flexible enough within their new company to draw students from both inside and outside the school and perform in other theaters and go on tours.

While 'Tommy' has had the full sanction of the Catholic administration and the moral support and assistance from the Sisters of the Sacred Heart, its popularity has caused the company to seek larger quarters than the intimate confines of the college's all-purpose room called The Wabe Theater. They moved the show this week to Friends and Relations Hall near Playland-at-the-Beach in San Francisco.

The idea of the new company is not to hire professionals to work with students but to give actors a chance to grow with other potentially talented people who have worked in other shows. They will perform shows tailored to a young, energetic company and will update the classics to give them more relevancy to our time.

Pasqualetti will continue as dance-drama instructor for his third year. He began as a costume designer for the Marin Shakespeare Festival theater and studied costume design with the Stanford Repertory Theater and opera productions at University of California. His dance training came from the Xoregos Dance School.

McKenna, the son of J. Fenton McKenna who is dean of Creative Arts at S.F. State College, has been at Lone Mountain for six years. He was graduated from State and got his Master's Degree before joining the South Coast Repertory Company in Newport Beach.

Both men are under 30 years of age. They bring enormous enthusiasm to their venture and claim they "want to establish an environment where young performers can grow."

They come to classes with incredible energy, just wanting someone to channel it. Their choice of freedom is through discipline.

Their concept of environmental theater is to draw the audience into the dramatic conflict as well as move their actors out into the audience. They came close to this in the surroundings of 'Tommy' where the crowds spread out on the floor, touching the dancers.

Romeo and Juliet will be seen on the floor of the balcony discussing their love but surrounded in silhouettes and shadows by the company also discovering themselves. "We get so entranced looking at the lovers, we forget there are other lives around them. I want a touch of real romance, an out-of-time idea," Pasqueletti claims.

Marin Outing

The Junior teen clubs in Daly City will journey to Marin Town and Country Club in Fairfax August 14. The cost is $2.50 for members and $3 for guests, which covers transportation, insurance, admission and dinner.

Missouri Bride for San Brunan

The First Baptist Church in Nevada, Mo., was the setting for the recent marriage of Linda Kay Pursley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pursley of that city, and Nathan Alan Pfeffer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Pfeffer of San Bruno who traveled to the Midwest for the ceremony.

The bride said her vows in a floor length gown of imported silk styled with a high neckline, bouffant sleeves and a chapel length mantilla veil. For her wedding trip to Nassau she changed to a street length brown double knit dress.

Matron of honor for Linda was Vicki Arthur of Nevada who wore a floor length mint green polyester chiffon gown of talisman floral design. Identical gowns were worn by the bridesmaids, Kathi Slusher of Lexington, Mo.; Marcy Shearer of Kansas City, and Carol Harpld of Nevada.

Kristy Cates of Kansas City, the flower girl, wore a mint green chiffon frock.

Dave Atwood of San Jose attended the bridegroom as best man. Serving as groomsmen were Jim Arthur of Nevada, Ron Harpold of San Diego and Bill Pursley of Lancaster.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was given on the patio of the bride's parents' home.

Linda was graduated from Nevada High School and received her bachelor of science degree in education from Central Missouri State College. She is now teaching third grade in Lancaster where she and her husband will make their first home. He studied locally at Capuchino High School and the College of San Mateo and is now stationed at Edwards Air Force Base.

DOMINO THEORY — It might pay to clip this section out of the Post . . . and throw it away without reading it. Actually, politics bore some people to death. On the other hand, there are a few nuts around, like this humble servant of the people, who LIKE politics, or the art of speaking with forked tongue, as many politicos have a tendency to do.

As we said in an earlier column, April is a long way off — but the race is already heating up.

There seems little doubt that veteran Democratic Assemblyman Leo Ryan will be a candidate for the newly created Congressional seat here in the North County. (And we'll betcha he'll win flat out.)

Once Ryan makes his move it will set up the "Domino Theory." Names will be tossed out from every angle in the hope they will be the chosen contenders for the vacated State Assembly seat now held by Ryan.

Names are even now pouring into this office at the rate of say, one a week, or less. But the names are interesting because they set off an expanded domino theory. That is, if this domino topples, so will the next, and the next, and the . . .

LATEST NAME is that of Daly City Mayor Bernard J. (Bud) Lycett. Lycett will only smile (most politicians smile. They no longer kiss babies unless the tots have swished Listerine around inside their mouths beforehand.) Lycett is known (liked or hated, depending on who one happens to be talking to) and has more than six years in county politics.

We cannot rule out three of the county's supervisors — Mrs. Jean Fassier (Demo.), Bob St. Clair (Demo.) and James V. Fitzgerald (Rep.). Then there are the names of San Bruno Councilman George Corey, and D.C. restaurateur Frank (Toto) Spadarella, still a favorite of county Republicans. You can point the finger at just about anyone and get some sort of response.

But there are two very interesting names when the mention of the Assembly seat comes up.

D. C. Councilman Frank Pacelli (who denies everything and won't even make a committment on whether he'll run for reelection to his own seat which comes up in April), and ANOTHER D.C. Councilman McRobert "Mac" Stewart, newcomer to the city council, but not to politics.

Stewart, a staunch Republican, has worked hard for the party and is being urged to run. Pacelli is a Democrat, as is Lycett. Both are being pushed for a decision.

IF PACELLI ELECTS (that's a fun-pun) NOT to run for reelection to the council, the "theory" is stretched even further because that would open another political door, inviting more to enter. There undoubtedly will be the usual end-runs, which usually end up on the sidelines. On the playing field, however, some very interesting names for the D.C. City Council have been mentioned.

Mostly rumors at this point are these names: Former muni judge and former D.C. city councilman, Paul Hupf; JESD Trustee William Schumacher (no big secret); former councilman, Mickey DeBernardi; and, one we want to leave in the hat for the time being. All we'll say about the latter is that he is also a former D.C. councilman. We will add here that Councilman Tony Giamonna will run for re-election. Why shouldn't he run? After all, he's done a good job during his term.

ONE FINAL NAME circulating that IS a surprise for the Assembly — that of JUHSD Superintendent Edward Morgan. Now let's hear all the denials, screams, gasps, etc. Then watch these events between now and April unfold right before your very eyes.

P.S. — That "well-liked realtor" we mentioned two weeks ago? The one who probably will oppose Joseph Lewkowitz for the D.C. city treasurer's job? Why, none other than Tony Zidich, longtime community resident and "silent" civic worker ('nuther words, he does a lot for the city, but doesn't blow his horn about it.)

QUESTION OF THE WEEK? Why does Duffy's Tavern owner Red McGuire call D.C. policeman Ralph Warren a "social infraction" whenever he refers to the police sergeant? Beats me. Those guessing the right answer will get to stick their tongues out at Sgt. Warren (if they dare.)

FLASHY FLASH — The backlog of remains is mounting. Latest word is that some mortuaries have rented a warehouse (we're not saying where) to store them.

ELIO FONTANA'S unsolicitate number plate is DYE 025. So what, you say? Well you see Elio is in the monument making business and if you say DYE it sounds like DIE, and . . . Forget it!

HEY, THAT'S a fine idea of columnist Herbert Caen . . . hanging San Francisco's Planning Commissioners in Daly City, rather than Effigy. Fact is I never even heard of "Effigy." No matter, the lynching might teach city planners hereabouts a thing or two. But we doubt it! When you get right down to it, Daly City has made some rather exceptional mistakes in planning. They are constantly getting zapped for "ticky-tacky" houses and just about everything but the fog, but San Francisco (the city that forgot how) has really made some magnificent blunders.

Witness the famed rock pile (NOT Alcatraz) near the equally famed Embarcadero skyway which gives motorists a truly great view of the oil-stained Bank of America eyescraper. Why go on, I'm already sick.

The Post gives its columnists a great deal of latitude, offering its readers the benefit of knowledgeable, varying opinion. Their opinions are not necessarily those of The Post which addresses itself to its readers only through clearly marked editorials.

San Francisco Bay—a Long History of Development

Concrete has been used extensively in the filling of the bay.
(Susan Landor Photo)

By LIN DAY

In 1850, as the Gold Rush began, San Francisco Bay consisted of 680 square miles of open water, marshes and tidelands. Fed by 16 rivers, it was a majestic sight, and the best and safest port in a storm on the Pacific coast.

Its clear waters teemed with fish and fowl, stopping from migrations north and south.

Enterprising merchants, supplying the thousands of miners racing to the goldfields and Mother Lode, filled in Yerba

First of a Series

Buena Cove with dirt and rocks from San Francisco's hills so that buildings could be erected to house the mountains of supplies for the men who hunted dust, nuggets and ore.

As the rush turned into a torrent of people and equipment, the abandoned ships piled up along the shore, their masts like denuded forests, as their crews left them in the hunt for gold.

Other enterprising merchants utilized the ships by filling in the areas around them and turning them into buildings, warehouses and stores.

The story of the metamorphosis of San Francisco into the great industrial-commercial city it was to become has been told. Yerba Buena became part of what is now downtown San Francisco. It also became the beginning of another story — the filling of the Bay.

About 251 square miles of marshlands, tidelands and submerged lands of the Bay have been filled to date.

That's 76 per cent of the 304 square miles of marshlands that existed in 1850, and a sizeable proportion of the tidelands and submerged lands.

About ten years ago, as development multiplied, those conversant with the situation became alarmed.

Recognizing that the Bay not only had come to be quite a different place, scarcely recognizable as to its original outline, concerned conservationists began to band together to do something about it. For even more serious than its changed appearance was the fact that the very ecology of the Bay was being threatened.

The U.S. Army Engineers, working with an elaborate scale model in Sausalito, determined that further filling of the Bay could reduce and even eliminate its remarkable cleansing action that swept debris, silt and effluent out through the Golden Gate into the ocean. Moreover, it could turn the entire South Bay stagnant and into a liability.

Already, the clams and other shellfish that had sustained the Indians of another day were gone, and the fish were going. Pollution from chemical plants added to the dilemma, and growing cities so charged the Bay with effluent that it became hazardous to swim in.

San Mateo County health authorities warned citizens not to go in the water.

During the 1950s, the filling of the Bay had been proceeding at a rapid pace. Industrialists and developers, as well as owners of the tidelands, looked at the marshy and shallow areas as money in the bank, while they pushed plans to completion for the use of the marginal areas. Even cities counted their blessings as they looked east from the Bayshore.

While plans proceeded, endless processions of dirt-haul trucks roared down from the hills with fill, and city councils were kept busy trying to arrange a compromise between the law, the truckers and the harried residents.

The spirit of the fifties had been one of unlimited expansion. In San Jose, merchants checked the papers and their chamber of commerce daily, keeping track of the mushrooming population figures. In San Mateo, cities vied to establish industrial tax bases and to lure away the best of San Francisco's industry and commerce with elaborate industrial parks and office buildings, many of them along the Bay front areas. The wage and price spiral zoomed ever upward, with industrial land at a premium, and every householder contemplating his values.

As the sixties began, however, leaders all about the Bay began to reflect on what was happening.

As one put it in those days — "It does little good to move away from the dirt and grime and noise of the city, if the city follows you."

A group of conservationists at the University of California, Berkeley, began the Save San Francisco Bay movement. They found allies along the suburbs, both among conservationists and among those thinking of preservation of the good life they had come to know.

Within two years, the Save the Bay movement was in high gear. Before the sixties had half elapsed, it had become a major political issue, and the State Legislature was torn with debate and pressures on all sides.

Out of all this came the controversial Bay Development and Conservation Commission, a pioneering regional organization that has combined a fight for the Bay with a fight for existence, and which has meanwhile become the object of study and emulation for regional and area controls all across the nation.

Today, the State Legislature finds its hopper filled with bills to establish coastal zones the length of California modeled on the BCDC, even while conservationists eye the power structures involved with concern, and industrialists, who once looked with some tolerance on the conservation movement, beginning to show worry — particularly those concerned with attracting new industry to the Bay.

And Bob St. Clair, the San Mateo County Supervisor who is the county representative on the BCDC, says simply: "I am the guardian of the Bay. There will be no more Bay fill of any consequence."

'We Live in an Era of Bad Taste'

Quoting Ruth Waterbury, dean of the fan magazine writers, Aljean Harmetz charges in Show Magazine, "We live in an era of bad taste," an era when fan magazines can use cover lines such as "Jesus Christ Was A Bastard" or "Where Was Jackie When Onassis and Callas Parted," and "The Love That Brought Ted Kennedy and Mary Jo Together."

Sam Chandler

There are 50 full-time fan-magazine writers living in Hollywood. A few successful ones make over $20,000 a year. Most of them are middle-aged men and women who write for adult Americans, not teen-agers and not hippies. Citing a recent market research survey, Miss Harmetz reports the average fan magazine reader is "a married, over 30-year-old woman with a high school education."

For Ruth Waterbury and her husband, the magazine's stories dote on John Wayne, Robert Young, Dean Martin, Lawrence Welk and, most of all, on Jackie Kennedy; for them, a headline screams, "Please God, We're Praying For Carol's Recovery From Cancer," but the article inside reveals that a sore toe was all that bothered Carol Burnett and the operation to fix it took 20 minutes.

SAME THINKERS write that such obvious bad taste is used as a means of escape from a society that feels the pressures of being crowded together in polluted cities, in a country which has too many people to be well-governed.

It is a society, they say, "where people have no readiness against computers and where the courts are fighting a losing battle against electronic equipment sophisticated enough to bug our bed springs and our beer cars, or against a number that will be assigned to us at birth, and carried like a scar for the rest of our lives."

Harmetz reports some thinkers write that America's bad taste stems from the low quality that marked fan magazines of 15 years ago.

It is probable, she says, the 30-year woman who dotes on "Tom Jones' Wife Stops Him From Suicide Leap," and John Wayne's wife's story, "Every Night I Pray He'll Be There In The Morning," is the 16-year-old who avidly read "Hollywood Star Secrets —How To Be Very Charming" in 1956.

MEANWHILE, the preoccupation with the sordid things of other people's lives has moved into the so-called respectable magazines. The New York Times Magazine capitalizes on Jackie Kennedy with such things as, "We even learned, Washington is such a gossipy city, that she didn't quite have a storybook marriage either."

The woman who has everything doesn't have a husband with an eye for other pretty women. In the same fashion, "Ladies Home Journal" has carried probes into the lives of Lynda Bird Johnson ("What New Young Marrieds Want"), Julie and David Eisenhower, Mrs. Nixon, Tricia Nixon, ("My Daughter Tricia," by the President) and Sargent Shriver ("What Happens To A Man Who Marries A Kennedy?").

"REDBOOK MAGAZINE" has fed its public such materials as an article giving the reaction of Lee Harvey Oswald's eight-year-old daughter on learning that her father killed the President of the United States, while Life published the secret pictures of Jackie Onassis sunbathing on her private island.

If literature is the mirror of the minds of the people, as some critics contend, what can be said of our age? Author Harmetz writes, "The fan magazines have made voyeurs before the magazines existed," which means the morals of communication, the magazines, the press, the television and radio industry and the book publishing world give the American people what they call for."

Perhaps it is time to agree with Thomas Hood that we have too much material that is "Shocking to taste and to Fine Arts a Treason."

Geneva Accords What They Seem?

Editor, The Post:

Yes! I favor passage of welfare reform '71.

The people who are paying the bill through taxation are going to end up applying for welfare, because they can no longer support themselves and the welfare recipients as well.

The welfare is like a growing cancer that is going to have to be eliminated.

I don't think that my government should be able to force me to support other people until I can support myself properly.

I work seven days a week to get ahead, but find that with taxes and property taxes so high that every time you make a few extra dollars you find that your taxes have been increased.

Our property taxes have increased from $700 to approximately $950 this year. The budget for welfare in San Mateo County this year is $47 million. This is an increase of $2 million over last year.

I don't think that we should be forced to pay for other people's food, medical, furniture, abortions, vacations, rents, etc. If these things keep up then I

(Please See Page 17, Col. 5)

The "Geneva Accords." Reference to the agreements of 1954 brings about the kind of respect usually reserved for the Bible, the Koran or the Constitution of the United States.

Presient Johhnson ("Guns and butter" "Light at the end of the tunnel") praised them as "a reliable agreement to guarantee the independence and security of all . . . Southeast Asia". Dean Rusk declared that peace in Vietnam should come about through "compliance with the agreements of 1954". Robert McNamara and others voiced approval. This we vaguely remember. What isn't so clearly recalled is that the fulsome praise of these leaders was enunciated in 1965, not 1954. The Geneva Accords were signed in 1954.

What about these almost sacrosanct agreements? Were they the material of a peace loving conference or were they something else again?

The Conference at Geneva considered both Korea and Indochina. The Indochina phase opened the day after the fall of Dienbienphu and was a strange mixture of power, diplomacy and politics. In fact, these were so closely related as to be indistinguishable. Russia (through Molotov) asssisted in overthrowing a French government for one it considered more agreeable to Russian objectives. During the early stages of the conference, the United States engaged in efforts to gather allies so she could actively pursue real war. The Vietminh were somehow persuaded to defer the full effect of their victory in exchange for French repudiation of the European Defense Community.

Suspicion, betrayal, truculence and intransigence were the tone of the conference. Far from the lofty dignity of convocations that inspire less respect, Geneva was a place of trickery and power politics.

Many factors must be weighed in considering the meagre results of the conference.

1) The cease fire agreement was only signed by France and the Vietminh. The State of Vietnam was largely ignored in this understanding.

2) The final declaration of all conference participants was not signed by either the United States or the State of Vietnam.

3) At the end of the conference, the principal American representative, Under-Secretary of State W. B. Bedell Smith, in the plainest language that could be used in a diplomatic setting articulated our displeasure with the accords.

4) The non-communist government of Vietnam called the terms of the armistice catastrophic and immoral.

5) The agreements provided no machinery for enforcement. The responsbility for seeing that the agreements were carried out was given to the seeming parties in interest, France and the Vietminh. France conveniently left Vietnam before elections were to be held and thus avoided responsibility.

6) The agreements anticipated this surprising possibility and provided that the successors to the parties were to carry on. But the successor to France was the State of Vietnam, and this government opposed the agreements from the outset and had not signed them in any event.

7) The final resting place of hope was with a control commission established at the Conference composed of Canadian, Indian and Polish representatives. But this commission was given no power or authority; it could (and did) make reports.

Although well written, the Geneva Agreement were a projection of the turbulence underlying the conference. The truth of the matter is that the nations attending did not agree and could not, therefore, sign papers that constituted real agreement. The failure was not in drafting, but in the underlying lack of a meeting of minds.

France had been defeated and wanted out. She purchased dignity for a consideration that was not spelled out in the Geneva Agreements (repudiation of the EDC). Russia and China, far from pursuing communists interests in Southeast Asia, traded Vietminh territory and people for French perfidy. The State of Vietnam was ignored. The United States deplored the Conference, refused to sign and otherwise made its position plain. The Vietminh representatives seem to have betrayed their people.

Now men often behave in this manner, and many a disagreeable mess has been "paper over" to be solved at a later time. Such events shouldn't surprise. But what should is the puzzling thing that occurred in this nation years after the ink of Geneva had dried. With our love of silly rhetoric and other claptrap we sanctified the accords and gave dignity where little was due.

Independently considered, the idea of free elections in Vietnam has great merit. But pursuit of such a sound principle should be based upon its own merits and not upon the flawed and illusory bedrock of Geneva. In retrospect, the Agreements should be remembered as the "Geneva Discords."

Roundup of Happenings At Daly City Playgrounds

JEFFERSON HIGH
By NICK NOCOLAS

With the third and final of the High School soccer league approaching Jefefrson High School holds a one point lead over Westmoor High School's Real Madrid Team.

Westmoor who suffered a 4-1 defeat from Jefferson in the first round bounced back in the second round to tie the league leaders 0-0. Westmoore with the top scoring threat of Louie Gonzales who leads the league in goals with 8 will be giving the Indians a little run for their money as the game is a must win for both teams.

At the bottom of the league but still giving the two top contenders problems is Jefferson II who have given both Westmoor and Jefferson I hard times.

NORTHRIDGE PARK
By STEVE BECKER

Northridge Park was highlighted by last week an exciting Bike race and spirited strike-out competition.

Pat Neligan led the pack from start to finish as he took top honors in the Bike race. Dino Amroso finished a close second, David Alas in third place, Sonny Adams in fourth place, David Rosenberg in fifth, Robert Mitchell in sixth, and Jerry Lewis came in seventh.

In our strike-out matches, many fine baseball players participated and will be heard from in the future. In the first game, Don Parks — Ricky Pender defeated the team of Wayne Wynn — Stanley Nakamura by a score of 8-7 in the second, Dave "greaseball" Mendelson — Greg Parks out-powered the duo of Norman Infusino and the recreation leader.

More exciting action is guaranteed, for next week . . . don't miss it!!

OLYMPIA
By LESLIE FAMBRINI

This past week was hula hoop week at Olympia Playground. All the regulars joined in for a cookout which was followed by a hula hoop contest. Joey O'Gorman, Mark Mannina, and Mike and Patrick Rothacker won in the boys' division. Karen Toner, Dee Dee O'Gorman and Beth Stark proved that girls are just as skilled as boys when it comes to the hula hoop.

Congratulations to all A special thanks is also extended to Tommy Meaghen who so kindly let us use his barbeque for our cookout.

Now that the summer is more than half over we will be preparing a float and costumes for our big parade at the end of the summer. Everyone is invited to come over and lend a hand.

OUR LADY OF MERCY
By KATHY CURRY

On Thusday, July 22, Our Lady of Mercy conducted a games tournament. The children competed in various games and were divided into two different age groups: 11 and under and 12-15. The following placed as first and second and third winners. Jim Diggins, Terry White, Diane Valestrino; Michele Modena, Jim Hough and Steve Walker in ping pong. Alana Modena, Terry White, Brad Galliani; Nolan Apostle, Matt Sullivan, and Chris Futhry in carroms. Jim Diggins, Alana Modena, Dan Diggins; Michele Modena, Nolan Apostle, and Chris Futhey in chess. Jim Diggins, Terry White, Brad Galliani in checkers.

PALISADES PARK
By RON CORTOPASSI

Many participants competed in Palisades Park first "standing broad jump" contest. After a series of exciting eliminations the winners for each age division were: Anita Jones finishing first with Rick Perone second in the 11 and older group. Keith Dowell, Mike Lee, and Carsten Jones finishing in this order for the 7-10 year old division. Darrell Washington, Joey Matekel and Gail Cunningham for the 6 and younger age division. Everyohe was provided with an enjoyable afternoon and even many less fortunate jumpers swore to return to avenge their losses.

Bicycle races are continuing at Palisades, with this past week's winners competing in the 7-year-old division. Joey Matakel, a 5-year-old with strong legs and much endurance, finished first. He was followed by Lance Matekel, and Mark Barro. All in all it was an exciting race.

Despite Palisades Park baseball team's loss to Garden Village in their opening game of the season, they plan to avenge this loss and begin their winning streak.

The Ladies' Slo-Pitch Softball League, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Division, came to a close with Ed Cordero Chevrolet taking top honors.

Final round of games saw the Daly City Toyota Tigers slam their way to a 22-3 victory over the Road Runners. Linda Torrez led the way with three home runs and two singles followed closely by Pat Safford who hit a homer, a triple, a double, and two singles in five times at bat. Joining her teammates, Cheryl Brennick conected for two triples and two singles.

The Road Runners were supported by Margaret Blair and Dale O'Connor.

Pee Wee Fleas overcame a slow start to tie up a game with the M. R. Salt & Peppers. Kathy McBride and Mary Lowry led the batting for the Fleas.

Coast Cyclists Set New Policy on Noise Level

The Coastside Motorcycle Club of Pacifica last week approved a policy stating that all motorcycles participating in club activities be equipped with an adequate silencer.

New types of silencers which reduce noise levels with little loss of power are now available.

Primary benefit of less noise is fewer complaints by the public. This, in turn, will help make more land available for use by motorcyclists, a club spokesman said.

The Motorcycle Industry Council, representing 90 per cent of motorcycle manufacturers, has launched a public information campaign with the theme, "Less Sound — More Ground."

Le Pacini's Sportscripts

Letters, Ah Sweet Letters...

THE READERS WRITE: You'd never know it to look at me, but people do write letters to this column. The column has this small coterie of faithful readers which serves to maintain my ego and even, occasionally, provide a column, or at least part of one. Let me see, there is Ed Cavagnero, Dr. Henry Soldati, Al Figone (only if I deliver it to him), Margaret O. Richardson, Noel Mertens (only when his name is in it), my mother-in-law (only when she's mad at my wife), my father and my uncle . . . although I'm not sure if it's fair to count them, because not only are they related to me, they are both a little eccentric. Then there is that guy in San Bruno, whose names escapes me for the moment, who lost an election bet (I lose him if Nixon wins again), and two masochists who can't afford whips.

Of course, there are the people who DON'T read the column. They differ from the entire population of the world which doesn't read the column, because the entire population of the world, except those named today, apparently don't realize the column — or the writer, we assume — exist. But the others who don't read the column know about it and PURPOSELY don't read it. They are: my editor, my wife, my mother, my dog (oh yes, she CAN read — if not, how can she pick her can of food out from the middle of a gaggle of canned beans?), and Spiro Agnew, who doesn't think my column should be the stakes in an election bet.

LET ME SEE, NOW. If I don't count Figone and my father and uncle, or even Mertens or my mother-in-law, and assume that Nixon wins, I still come out five and five, if the masochists don't discover they can rent whips at Abbey Rents. And if you come out even nowadays, you're ahead — or something like that.

But I digress somewhat. On to the letters.

Margaret O. Richardson, in reference to the epic poem of the July 18 column in which it was suggested that sports figures might more effectively run the government, replies poetically, thusly:

I VOTE FOR CRUSADERS LIKE YOU

That the wrong people are in government leaves not an inch of doubt; but once we vote them in, it's hard to push them out.
If sportsmen became candidates, they probably would win; and do so well, undoubtedly, we'd want to keep them in
To make a sport of government may not improve our breed;
So, we could make a government of sports, if you would take the lead.

(Dear Mrs. Richardson, thanks for your confidence, but my leadership qualities are such that if I gave the Black Power Salute, I'd be holding a handful of thumbtacks.)

Billy Mahoney, our boxing correspondent from Fresno, writes us that he was on location for five days in Stockton where the best selling book of a couple of years ago, "Fat City," was being made into a movie. Billy will be seen on camera in a few fight scenes. He had earlier been offered a fairly large talking part, but business prevented him from accepting the offer.

OTHER FIGHTERS who will be seen prominently in the film are Art Aragon, Bert Colima, Curtis Cokes, Hedgeman Lewis, Sixto Rodrigues, Al Avila and quite a few others who provide authentic background.

Dr. Soldati has been at work again. In a recent letter he notes, among other things, that Bobby Bonds, despite his rather spectacular achievements this year, is very much underrated, at least by fans around the league.

He comes to this conclusion by checking the votes Bonds received in All-Star balloting by the fans—votes which added up to almost nothing. (Bonds was eventually named to the team by manager Sparky Anderson, but got in only pinch-hitting duty.)

Even if one were to forget Bonds' fielding and throwing, he indicates, it would be very difficult to overlook his offensive contributions, which rated third in the league two weeks before voting for the All-Star game ended.

Dr. Soldati computes offensive worth by totaling RBI's and runs scored and subtracting home runs, to avoid duplication, and calls the system R.P. (run production.) According to this system, the top 12 outfielders in the league two weeks before All-Star game voting ended, were: Willie Stargell (75), Hank Aaron (73), Bonds (72), Lou Brock (71), Willie Davis (69), Billy Williams (62), Rich Allen, Ralph Garr, Roberto Clemente and Willie Mays (61), Rusty Staub (53), Willie Montanez (52).

(Dr. Soldati also notes that Nate Colbert scored better than any other first baseman in this category, yet received virtually no votes, and also that Bonds had the third best R.P. in the entire league last year, regardless of position, behind only Williams and Johnny Bench.)

WE'RE SURE, OF COURSE, that Dr. Soldati realizes that the All-Star game is a popularity contest, that there is more to playing baseball than just offense (although in Bonds' case, as we noted, his defense is at least close to being on a par with his offense), and that much of a player R.P. depends on such factors outside his control as the style of game his manager plays, how his teammates cooperate by getting on base in front of him, or driving him in when he gets on base, where he bats in the lineup, etc. But his is an interesting and well taken point, nonetheless.

Another interesting factor in the All-Star argument — which may not make the fans look so bad — is the unofficial player's All-Star poll conducted by the Sporting News. In that one, Bonds polled ninth behind Stargell, Aaron, Davis, Mays, Clemente, Williams, Garr and Staubb; and Colbert was a distant third behind Lee May and Willie McCovey.

If we may add an appendage to the good doctor's work, as of statistics of July 24, the same players line up thusly: Stargell (123), Bonds (113), Davis and Aaron (106), Brock (104), Clemente (102), Williams and Montanez (100), Allen (96), Garr (95), Staub (90) and Mays (84).

In the American League, the top 12 offensive players, regardless of position, were: Don Buford (104), Bobby Murcer (102), Carl Yastrzemski (98), Brooks Robinson and Rico Petrocelli (95), Jim Otis, Frank Robinson and Roy White (94), Sal Bando (93), Reggie Smith (92) Cookie Rojas (89), Jim Northrup (85).

IT TOOK US A FEW WEEKS to figure out, but we've finally uncovered the real truth of Tony Conigliaro's premature retirement. A certain Oakland broadcaster drove him out of the game, unintentionally, we are sure.

Just days before Tony's retirement, Monty Malaprop, who continues to amaze, was relating how Conigliaro had almost lost his eye several years before when hit with a pitched ball while playing for the Red Sox. This was Monty's verson: "And here's Tony Conigliaro, who was once hit in the head by a pitched ball and injured so severely that for some time he lost his visibility."

This is just an excerpt, folks, from a book we are preparing (the working title is "Amazing Inanities, Bloopers, and Just Plain Silly Sayings in Sports"), based entirely on a one-month monitoring of the A's broadcasts.

TAG ENDS: Don't get all excited about Giant doubleplay records, despite the shouting about them by Giant broadcasters. Actually, as of the last statistics we saw, the Giants have made only nine more DP's than last year at the same date. That DOESN'T mean, however, that Chris Speier and Tito Fuentes aren't doing a much better job than Hal Lanier and Ron Hunt might have done. Last year's keystone duo played on a slower turf, and may have been way off their DP pace on the current Candlestick surface, which requires more quickness afoot than Lanier and Hunt might have had. In other words, it has taken an outstanding pair around that bag just to keep about even.

It was nice to hear Mike Epstein, the A's first baseman, give his college coach at Cal, George Wolfman, such a nice plug when Mike was interviewed before a recent televised game. Too many stars forget the guys who guided them before they signed the big contracts.

Yokels, Mustangers In Division Leads

The following are recent scores in the Daly City Recreation Division High School Slow Pitch Softball League.

EASTERN DIVISION

In the Eastern Division the Lincoln Park Allstars behind the homerun hitting of Ira Fern defeated the Southern Hills Brewers 3-1. The Westlake School Mustangers moved into a tie for first place by trouncing the Westlake Park Mongers 10-4.

John Stack was the fielding star for the Mustangers while Bill Shananhan and George McLaughlin led the hitting attack. The Regal Selects kept pace with the Mustangers by squeaking past an inspired Allstar team by a score of 8-7. The Selects were trailing by four runs going into the fifth inning, but the timely hitting of Pete Diaz and Bruce Olmanson brought them from behind.

Rick Kushman and Jose Maldonado were outstanding for the Allstars. In the final frame of the week the Westlake School Mustangers blasted the Southern Hills Brewers by a score of 19-1. Tom McLaughlin, Mark Racette, and George Parry led the Mustang attack.

SC Wins Summer JC League

Skyline College completed a comeback saga last week by winning the second annual San Mateo Rec Junior College Summer Basketball League.

The Trojans, who had been down and nearly out, upset round-robin champion Canada College, 75-65, in the Colts' gym.

A series of ten straight field goals by Matt Kriletich and Mike Larios midway through the second half spirited Skyline out to a ten point lead and they never looked back.

Another paramount factor in the Skyline victory was Paul Reynolds winning the rebound duel from Ricky Watts, 18-12.

Kriletich led all scorers with 20 points, while Steve Kircher netted 18 for the losers.

Win for Pacifica

The Pacifica American League all-star Little League team goes into the subsectional tournament game against the Palo Alto champion at Belmont's Marina Park tomorrow at 6 p.m.

Pacifica became the district 52 champion Saturday by beating the San Mateo National League all-stars, 4-2, at San Mateo's Trinta Park.

San Mateo took an early lead in the second inning when Rob Biagini crashed the first of his two solo homers for the afternoon — San Mateo's only scoring.

Then, in the bottom of the fifth, Pacifica's Ed Pulanco led off with a double. Then Pacifica hurler Joey Soldevila aided his own cause greatly with another double to drive in Pulanco and tie the score.

Biagini got his second homer in the top of the last inning to give San Mateo another temporary lead, but it didn't last long.

Pacifica pinch-hitter Jeff Russell singled, Mike Diaz singled, and center fielder Gorden Shirley followed with a shot over the right field fence for three runs and the game.

Soldevila went the distance and collected ten strikeouts.

In the preliminary consolation game, San Mateo American downed Belmont 2-0; winning pitcher Brian Duffy struck out 12 and loser Ron Hales whiffed 13.

LETTERS to the editor

will be forced to apply for these benefits.

Due to the increase in the welfare budget this county was forced to eliminate new parks and recreation that was scheduled for this budget. Why should my children have to suffer when I am paying the bill?

Why should welfare recipients be guaranteed a cost of living increase when, we, who are paying the bill, are not guaranteed a cost of living increase?

Why should welfare recipients receiving aid to needy children be able to receive funds for their children to go to college when I, as the man who is paying the bill, possibly will not be able to send our children to college?

Why should welfare recipients be able to get a discount on their food bill and I who am paying the bill has to pay regular prices?

I do not feel that the welfare program is policed properly, and as far as we are concerned the welfare program is a form of socialism and there has never been a society that has succeeded under a socialist system.

A Giant Jade Dilemma

After months of work and the expenditure of $8,000, four scuba divers have extracted a five-ton rock of jade from the Pacific Ocean. And now they don't know quite what to do with it.

Donald Wobber, 43, 3665 Ralston Avenue, Hillsborough, said, "We want it to go to a museum," and hopes someone will donate the money to put it in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

But no one has come forward and the four men who tugged it from 30 feet deep in the ocean value it at $180,000. They assert the eight-foot long stone is the largest piece of jade on this continent.

Wobber, who is a printer and photographer, had known about the jade for ten years but until recently had believed it impossible to lift from a ledge off the Monterey County shore south of Big Sur.

Starting in November, he and the three others dug under the ledge so that the rock slid down onto a steel pallet which was in water 70 feet deep.

The pallet was raised with floats and towed to shore behind a raft powered by an outboard motorboat. Prodded onto a beach, it was lifted to a trailer and is now in San Francisco.

Others taking part are James Norton, 54, of San Francisco; Gary Carmignani, 27, of San Francisco; and Sonny Phillips, 21, of Cambria Pines.

It will go on display August 14 and 15 at the San Francisco Gem and Mineral Society's exhibit in Golden Gate Park, and Wobber and Norton plan to tow it to Chinatown.

Wobber says he's sure Oriental people won't be able to resist it, with their traditional admiration of jade.

During their work, the four men heard rumors that modern day pirates were after the rock but a search of the area failed to turn up a vessel big enough to lift it.

Previously Wobber and Norton had pulled other pieces of jade from the sea. The Oakland Museum now has one which weighs 750 pounds and the San Diego Museum has one weighing 2,300 pounds.

Meeting Ordered on Coast Beach Plans

A town hall meeting on the North Montara Beach controversy was ordered July 27 by the County Board of Supervisors.

The board asked the Planning and Park and Recreation commissions and County Manager M. D. Tarshes to arrange a meeting with concerned residents of the area to discuss various plans for the property and try to reach a consensus. Tarshes said state park recreation officials and legislators also will be invited.

At the same time the board reiterated its desire that the Planning Commission defer approval of any plans or permits for development of the disputed property until the supervisors give their approval.

The property owners and would-be developers, Deane and Deane, were scheduled to outline their ideas for the old McNee Ranch, including the 38 acres west of Cabrillo Highway that are the subject of the controversy, to the Planning Commission today. Planning Director Reino Liukkonen said the commission is to be asked to give formal approval to a general development plan on August 11, after which Deane and Deane will be free to submit maps and requests for zoning changes.

District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson advised the board that, once the maps and rezoning applications are filed, the county will be limited by law as to how long it can delay action.

Deane and Deane's plans call for two holes and a clubhouse of a championship golf course, plus some commercial development, to be west of the highway. Public access to the beach would be assured and space would be provided for public parking.

The county, on the other hand, has been attempting to acquire the entire 38 acres for public use. This year $315,000 in county tax money was made available to the state to use as matching money for a federal grant in the same amount. The grant was obtained but the State Legislature took the item out of the budget at the last minute.

Mrs. Pat Barrentine, executive secretary of the Committee for Green Foothills, told the supervisors yesterday that Deane and Deane got the item deleted from the state budget. She called it unique and enlightening.

Tarshes said that Senate Bill 1099, which was amended by Senator Arlen Gregorio to restore the beach deal, is still alive despite its failure to clear the Senate Natural Resources Committee Monday.

Supervisor Jean Fassler, who favors public acquisition of the property, called the state's long-range plans for a parking lot large enough to accommodate 1,000 cars a "frightening thing."

As to the plans for the town hall meeting, Mrs. Fasaler said there is a great deal of unrest among Coastside residents about the future of the site and added, "The wishes of the people are not being heard."

"We haven't been consulted," said Mel Bosnos of Montara. "We have felt very much ignored."

Bosnos said the majority of the people there want both the beach and the golf course.

"Most people," said Louis Swain, secretary of the Half Moon Bay Chamber of Commerce, "feel you can have your cake and eat it. The developer says he will give access to the beach and provide for parking."

Swain said his concern is about a possible adverse effect upon the economy if public acquisition takes the property off of the tax roles.

If you can't come to us, we'll come to you.

It's one thing to save empty Lucky bottles and cans for recycling. It's another to get them back to a collection center. We know from letters and phone calls that some people have problems in getting empties back to us, so we're bringing a collection center to you.

Now there's a Lucky mobile recycling center. The center will be driven to a new location every day.

You get the same money at the mobile center as you do at the regular collection centers...1¢ each for empty Lucky beer bottles and 1/2¢ each for empty Lucky beer cans. (If you bring in bottles by the case-load, we pay, 25¢ for every 24-bottle case.)

Our new mobile recycling center makes it even easier for you to join in this important program. You might be interested to know that the Lucky recycling program for all our bottles and cans is already a great success. We were the first brewery around here to buy back all our bottles and cans and in a very short time the public has recycled more than 10 million Lucky containers. That's progress. LUCKY BREWERIES, INC.

Navy Man Earns Honor

Navy Boilerman Second Class Edward J. Signorello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Signorello of 24 Carlsbad Court in South San Francisco, was recently presented the Navy Achievement Medal. The presentation was made by Rear Admiral Alfred R. Matter, commandant of the Twelfth Naval district headquartered at Naval Station Treasure Island in San Francisco. Petty Officer Signorello's parents attended the ceremony in which he was cited hor his performance aboard the destroyer USS Coontz.

Appointments Postponed

Appointments to the South San Francisco Architectural Committee were postponed by planning commissioners because of weak applicant response.

City Planner Dan Pass said he has received four applications, two of them from within the city limits. Commissioners held up any appointments for a month, hoping to receive more applications.

In other business, the commissioners approved a use permit request of Standard Oil Company of California to redevelop a service station, including a new sign, at 300 South Airport Boulevard.

Policeman Disarms Gun Suspect

A young San Bruno policeman disarmed an irate shotgun-carrying man on Friday after being called to break up a family quarrel.

Officer Terry Johnson, a veteran of three years on the San Bruno Police Department, was dispatched to the home of Daniel and Barbara Baeza at 536 First Avenue about 11:15 p.m.

On entering the home, the 21-year-old Baeza allegedly picked up a 12-gauge shotgun and pointed it at the officer.

Pulling out his police revolver, Officer Johnson ordered Baeza to drop the shotgun, which the husband eventually did.

Baeza was arrested on a charge of felony wife beating and assault with a deadly weapon. He is being held without bail, police said.

Barbara Jean Baeza was reported in satisfactory condition in Peninsula Hospital with possible head injuries.

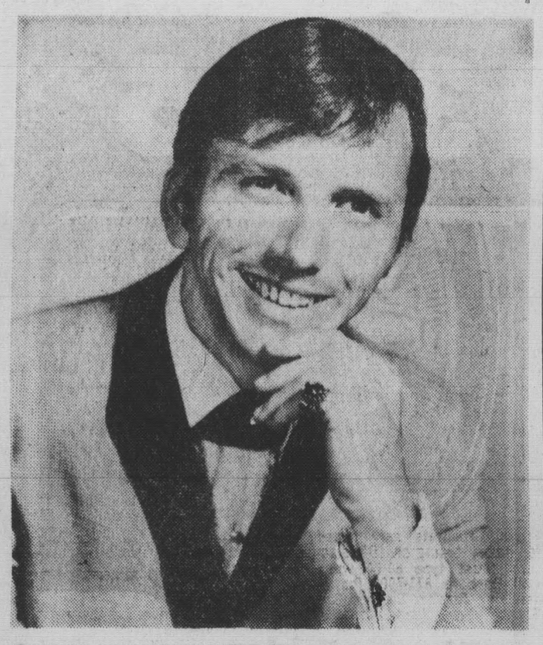
BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Finocchio's Chorus Line Stellar Attraction

The Eve-ettes chorus line has become one of the stellar attractions of Finocchio's world-famous production of female impersonators. Under the direction of Joel Nobel, Broadway musical entertainer who has worked with Josephine Baker in her Paris productions, the Eve-ettes perform with precision and grace. The first show is the same as the third show, while the second show is repeated as the fourth show each evening. Patrons can sit through two shows at no extra charge . . . You'll find a variety of steaks, barbecued baby ribs and prime ribs of beef listed as specialties of the house at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City. The waitresses here all wear bright Scottish attire, and diners are literally surrounded by a fortune in antiques . . . Since 1945, Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant, now considered the "Fisherman's Wharf of the Peninsula," has pleased the palates of countless residents and visitors in the Bay Area. Besides serving luncheon and dinner (there are several dining rooms), the convenience of food to take out is also available. For a "to go" order, simply ask . . . Looks like Phil Lehr's Steakery, in downtown San Francisco will be "headquarters" for delegates attending the big San Francisco Gift Show Convention opening August 8. Phil is receiving a flock of long-distance reservations for meetings and dinner parties.



BLACK ANGUS FAVORITE — "Natale," alias Nat Conti, is coming back next Tuesday, August 3, to entertain nightly in the cocktail lounge at Stuart Anderson's Black Angus Steak House. Nat returns with his uninhibited Brooklyn humor, his vibrant vocals and his sizzling piano. The incredible guy actually gets standing ovations almost every evening. Catch his show Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Black Stag's New Budget Menu

Dinners at The Black Stag (which recently introduced a new menu) begin at just $2.85. In these days of spiraling food costs, Manager Arnie Ramirez has wisely prepared a menu of quality items that don't stretch the purse strings. All dinners are served complete, too. A real treat here is Chef Frank Orsi's Cannelloni. Try it! . . . Mayor Alioto, the honored guest at the Mission Bruno-Friars Club monthly luncheon, in rare form delivering a spirited address on Out Town. Called upon to play a violin solo, the bow broke and Hizzoner obliged by plucking "O Solo Mio" in Fritz Kreisler fashion . . . Reno Donati, co-owner of the New Southern in South San Francisco, reminds patrons that plenty of parking is available in the rear of the restaurant. He also apologizes for any inconveniences that occurred while the road project was taking place on El Camino Real . . . The Red Cottage in Menlo Park has two conscientious owners — Dorothy Pace and Ken Parrett, one of which is always on the presmises to greet diners and to ask if the food is satisfactory. Needless to say, they seldom hear complaints.

Successful Tour Agency

Well deserved praise is due Jerry and Barbara Barber, who own and operate Park Avenue Tours, as well as the Park Avenue Motel in Stateline, Nevada. In just a few short years, this industrious couple managed to build up one of the most successful tour agencies in the Bay Area. They now have four convenient offices around the Bay area, and each office specializes in money-saving packages to Lake Tahoe, Reno or Las Vegas . . . A. Sabella's at Fisherman's Wharf affords an animated scene beyond the wide windows of the three-story restaurant and lounge of the San Francisco harbor with its Bay traffic. Lucien Sabella has won an impressive clientele ranging from our armed forces and stars of the entertainment world to thousands of visitors and residents . . . Boston and Cisco Mason, headliners of their own show at Russo's in San Bruno, are also established veterans on the Nevada entertainment circuit . . . Opening at The Putter, Burlingame Plaza, is After Glow, a fine sounding group from the Midwest. After a two-week gig here, they will head for Hawaii.

Shadows Official Caterers

The catering crew at The Shadows of San Mateo just pulled another coup. They are the official caterers for the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta, currently taking place at the Fairgrounds. Walt Gum is the man in charge, and he's practically living in a tent during the past week of Fair activities . . . The Hillsdale Inn, San Mateo, is proud of its reputation for good service. Among those deserving praise is Thelma Wood. Thelma, a native of Colorado, is a cocktail waitress in the Sportsmen's Lounge, where she has worked for the past five years. Since the Inn attracts so many people from nearby Bay Meadows, Thelma has managed to pick up considerable track jargon . . . For wedding receptions, showers, or whatever your group might be, the Costa Brava restaurant, located across the freeway from Candlestick Park, has an experienced staff to take care of all details. The La Mancha banquet room accommodates 110 persons, with discounts to groups over 30, including your own private bar. All rooms have an exciting penthouse view of the city skyline.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Lord Fletcher Inn Crew Avid Baseball Followers

Andy Ardito, general manager of Atherton's Lord Fletcher Inn, is an avid baseball fan. The main topic of conversation between Andy and Night Plankman Mandy Ortega is whether the Giants and the A's will make this Fall's World Series. Football season is just around the corner, so you can imagine what the topic will be for the next few months at this fashionable restaurant . . . Those choice menu suggestions you find on the Exposition Fish Grotto menu are the result of Manager Augie Rosasco and Chef Art Davis personally selecting only top fish and sea foods, meats and produce each day. Only the very best the market affords finds its way to the Expo's kitchen . . . Not enough can be said about drummer Dave Newman and bassist Don Stewart, the two fine sidemen backing singer Jerry Dyke in the luxurious Red Fox lounge at Holiday Inn-Belmont. Both of these musicians have played with some of the finest bands in the land . . . Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco's Marina District, caters to dieters as well as big eaters. Extra-choice steaks are cut to your exact order — any size — so you can eat as much, or as little, as you like.

Hoist The Sails And Anchor

Summer and Fall bring warm weather and holiday moods to the Bay Area. What better time for a cruise to Tiburon! The Champagne Dinner Cruise has entertained nearly 5,000 persons since the season opened at the end of April. The round-trip boat ride to Tiburon features free champagne, live music and dancing onboard plus a full course dinner at their choice of six elegant restaurants in Tiburon. The cost is $8.75 per person. Boats depart every Thursday from Fisherman's Wharf, Pier 43½, at 6:30 p.m. and 7:45 p.m., from now until mid-November . . . The luncheon and dinner menus of Tom Delano, executive chef of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel's Greenwillow Room, are gaining popularity in leaps and bounds. His Daily Specials are attracting special praise. Club Seville, a relaxing cocktail lounge located across the lobby from the dining room, is now featuring a terrific buy in beverages. Jumbo gimlets, martinis and Manhattans are just75 cents and are served by the pitcher for you to pour . . . "To enjoy our smorgasbord," says Inga Lindholm of the Little Sweden in San Francisco "we first suggest herrring and sea food, then our tasty salads, meats and aspics. Finally, hot dishes and cheese, and always imported Carlsberg beer. We recommend you take a clean plate for each course."

Charles Gust Visualized Future

Nick Gust who owns a restaurant empire at Rockaway Beach in Pacifica, owes a considerable debt to his father, Charles. Over 40 years ago, Charles owned a small store, selling household goods and food. It was he who visualized the fine future ahead for the coastside and the Pacifica area . .. The Papagayo Room's "2 for the price of 1" coupon, featured Wednesdays through Sundays, has been extended through August 29, by popular demand. Tony Masters has been given additional duties at Hyatt House Burlingame. Besides providing the dinner background music on Saturday nights in Hugo's dining room, the Tony Masters Trio plays the dance music on Monday nights in Hugo's Bistro, where Three's Company headline Tuesdays through Saturdays . . . John Hutchinson, general manager at Yolanda's Terminal Cafe, wants to stress that dinners are still priced at $3.95. Considering the fact that prices seem to be rising everywhere in our economy, this is good food news. Children under 12 still dine for $1.95, and on monday nights (designated as Family Night they dine free.

House Of Troy Dark August 2-7

Sal Campagna's House of Troy restaurant will be closed from August 2 through August 7 (at the same time as Lenkurt) for remodeling. The restaurant will be painted and repapered; the tables will be more versatile, and new rugs and a wine rack will be installed. The over-all picture will be warmer and more intimate. Large parties will also be more easily handled . . . Due to the absence of a member of his executive staff, Doug Young, general manager of the International Inn restaurant in South San Francisco, has been working evenings for the past few days. However, this arrangement is only temporary — the genial host will be leaving for three weeks of vacation in August. A great outdoor sportsman, Doug is certain to return to work with an even deeper tan . . . The new reasonably-priced dinner at Doros is proving popular. Served until 9:30 p.m., it has choice of soups, tossed green salad, choice of entrees, dessert and coffee.

New Trends in Education

NEW YORK (UPI) — A dozen persons, most of them young, have prepared a blueprint for educational change in the decade ahead.

"This is a report not only to the President of the United States, but to the American people," said the 12 reporting to the White House Conference on Youth.

"It is a plea by the nation's youth to do what has to be done to provide the kind of education that is needed to make the United States not only a free and democratic country but also a humanistic one."

Task force members complained about the necessity of grades and prerequisites both for admittance to college and graduation from it. They argued for permission to take classes in both academic and voctional programs. The pattern to their demands shaped up as follows:

— Equal educational opportunity, relevant educational systems and programs, student participation in the educational decision-making process, the dropout and potential dropout, exceptional students, and the preparation of teachers and potential teachers.

The report makes evident the fact that students, parents, teachers, administrators, culturally different and economically disadvantaged, as well as affluent white citizens all are searching for the same solution on the education front.

"An educational environment to meet the needs of all of the nation's students so that schools can become more effective places of learning and the nation and society can once more be at peace with itself," is the way the report puts it.

If such an atmosphere can be achieved, the task force believes that not only will each student receive an education "relevant" to his needs, hut teachers once again will be able to concentrate on developing major programs.

Specific recommendations called for:

—Schools and colleges providing equal access to educational opportunities for all students, regardless of socio-economic background, race, sex, or geographic location;

—Lifelong learning opportunities on a flexible hourly, daily and annual schedule must be made available to all who wish to return to school.

—Students must be permitted to explore various areas of interest, to learn outside the formal classroom, and to move freely between vocational and academic programs, in and out of school;

—High school and college students should participate in educational decisions and student governing, including advisory roles in governmental agencies such as the U.S. Office of Education.

— Traditional learning methods must be altered to throw a greater burden of routine knowledge dissemination on modern technology, while making faculty more available for counseling and smaller or individualized learning situations, and for "humanizing" the educational process.

—The government should place great emphasis on funding experimental and inovative models because the need for change in educational institutions is so great and the obstacles to change so formidable.

The major premise involved in the new education envisioned by the task force is that the educational system must be concerned not only with the acquisition of knowledge, but also with the acquisition of human understanding.

Other premises cited by the task force:

—Society must recognize the dignity of every human endeavor and refrain from evaluating people according to an intellectual order based on school subjects and job classifications. Society must offer as much respect and place as much emphasis on training good mechanics, plumbers and wood workers, as it does on training good dentists, writers and chemical engineers.

—There is no single "right educational system which must be imposed upon the youth of the United States. Each system should depend upon the needs of the individual student at that time and place.

— The school building is only a small portion of the learning experience. Education can and does take place in many other ways, and these should receive as much consideration as that of the formal classroom.

—Learning is a life-long process.

Emphasis on Creativity

Private schools whether oriented to academic pursuits or career training traditionally have emphasized education tailored to the individual student's needs.

A relative newcomer to the local private education scene, McKinney School, is entering its third year as a non-profit institution that aims to bring a measure of "spontaneity and joyous curiousity" to the school age youngster.

Under the direction of its founder, Diane McKinney, the school at 2145 Bunker Hill Drive in San Mateo has assembled a faculty of "creative and aware teachers" who actively participate in their fields, being doers as well as instructors.

Classes, expanded this year to extend from kindergarten through tenth grade, are conducted in a relaxed atmosphere conducive to self-discipline among the pupils.

Miss McKinney, who also serves as a guidance counselor at Borel Middle School in San Mateo, comments that private and public schools can work together to provide better education.

An educator with 15 years experience at levels from kindergarten through junior college and adult education, Miss McKinney holds B.A. degrees in liberal arts and in psychology and a master's degree in education and counseling.

In addition to the basic educational tools, the McKinney School emphasizes creativity in art, writing, music, and the drama.

The new school term starts September 13.
